PROBLEM

The title, Every 15 Minutes, comes from the unfortunate fact that during the early 1980s every 15 minutes someone in the United States was killed in an alcohol-related traffic collision. While the implementation of new laws and grassroots programs have helped bring the death rate down to one death every 30 minutes, this figure continues to be unacceptable.

GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

Every 15 Minutes is a two-day program that challenges high school students to think about the consequences of drinking, personal safety, and the responsibility of making mature decisions when lives are involved. The program seeks to provide students with a hard-hitting, realistic dramatization of the aftermath of a fatal alcohol-related car crash.

STRATEGIES AND ACTIVITIES

The Every 15 Minutes program begins with an outdoor assembly where students witness a dramatization of the aftermath of a fatal alcohol-related collision involving two automobiles. Emergency personnel, including police, fire, paramedics, and the coroner’s office, respond to the crash scene with sirens blaring; the crews rapidly working to free the victims from the automobiles. Emergency responders transport those that are critically injured while others are declared dead and removed by the coroner.

The designated student drunk driver is given a field sobriety test and is arrested for driving under the influence. After the assembly students return to class; however, throughout the day selected students are removed from class by a “grim reaper” character while a police officer reads the student’s obituary. The student then becomes one of the “walking dead” and continues with his/her classes, but is not allowed to interact with other students.

The dramatization provides convincing overtones as to the loss felt by everyone due to a fatal alcohol-involved collision. At the end of the day, the crash victims and the “walking dead” stay overnight at a local retreat site to more effectively simulate the physical and emotional impact on others that these students are no longer alive. The program culminates the following day with an assembly featuring the “walking dead”, crash victims, their parents, guest speakers, and testimonies from relatives of real DUI victims.
RESULTS

This powerful program helps the students see members of their community in a different light. They are no longer just police, doctors, paramedics or firefighters, but are mentors and human beings who care about the youth in the community.

It also creates awareness among students that they are not invincible and allows them to experience first hand how their actions affect the lives of so many others. Further, research has shown that after participating in the Every 15 Minutes program, students are less likely to drive when drinking and are less likely to be a passenger with a driver who had been drinking.

PLANNING

This program takes a lot of coordination and planning for months in advance of the actual event. The staff at Chugiak High School welcomes your help and participation as we plan for this event. You can contact Officer Wendi Shackelford at 742-3219 or Mrs. Kathy Vik at 742-3239 to volunteer your time. We will keep you posted. Thank you!

WHAT IS EVERY 15 MINUTES?

Life's lessons are best learned through experience. Unfortunately, when the target audience is teens and the topic is drinking and driving, experience is not the teacher of choice.

The Every 15 Minutes Program offers real-life experience without the real-life risks. This emotionally charged program, entitled Every 15 Minutes, is an event designed to dramatically instill teenagers with the potentially dangerous consequences of drinking alcohol. This powerful program will challenge students to think about drinking, personal safety, and the responsibility of making mature decisions when lives are involved.

During the first day's events the "Grim Reaper" calls students, who have been pre-selected, out of class. One student is removed from class every 15 minutes. A police officer will immediately enter the classroom to read an obituary which has been written by the "dead" student's parents, explaining the circumstances of their classmate's demise and the contributions the student has made to the school and the community. A few minutes later, the student will return to class as the "walking dead," complete with white face make-up, a coroner's tag, and a black Every 15 Minutes T-shirt. From that point on "victims" will not speak or interact with other students for the remainder of the school day. Simultaneously, uniformed officers will make mock death notifications to the parents of these children at their home, place of employment, or business.

Later in the day, a simulated traffic collision will be viewable on the school grounds. Rescue workers will respond and treat “injured” student participants. These observing students will experience, first hand, the sensations of being involved in a tragic, alcohol-related collision. The coroner will handle fatalities on the scene, while the injured students will be extricated by the jaws-of-life manned by firefighters and paramedics. Police officers will investigate, arrest, and incarcerate the student "drunk driver". Student participants will continue their experience by an actual trip to the morgue, the hospital emergency room, and the correctional facility for the purpose of being booked for "drunk driving".

At the end of the day, those students who participated in the staged collision, as well as those who were made-up as the "walking dead," will be transported to a local facility for an overnight student retreat. The retreat will simulate the immediate and sudden separation from friends and family. A support staff of counselors, adults, and police officers will facilitate the retreat.
During the most powerful portion of the retreat, the students will write a letter to his or her parents starting out with . . .

"Dear Mom and Dad, every fifteen minutes someone in the United States dies from an alcohol related traffic collision, and today I died. I never had the chance to tell you......."

Parents will also be asked to write similar letters to their children. These letters will be shared the following day when students and parents are reunited at a school memorial assembly. Research shows that those who learn from hands-on experience retain 2 to 4 times more than those who learn from just listening, or from seeing and listening.

On the following morning, a memorial service will be held at the high school. The assembly will include scenes from the first day with the "Grim Reaper" and the staged collision. It will be hosted by a master/mistress of ceremony who will guide the audience through the devastating effects of losing a loved one due to bad choices. Speakers may include police officers, students who will read letters to their parents and parents who will share their personal reflections on their involvement with this program. Finally, a guest speaker (s) will share their real life, personal involvement with an alcohol-related crash.

The realization that the decision to consume alcohol can affect many more people than just the one who drinks is the focus of the memorial assembly. This very emotional event will illustrate to all students the potentially dangerous consequences of using alcohol, regardless of how casual they believe their use of alcohol may be.

This event includes the participation of local police and fire departments, high school staff, local hospital staff, video production crew, community officials, District Attorney's office and a wide cross-section of the community at-large. It is our goal to utilize the strength, talent, and resources of business and industry to prevent drunken driving.

- Design certificates of recognition
- Compile a list of persons who will receive certificates and/or plaques, based on their level of involvement or donation of time/services
- Write and distribute thank you cards for all those involved
- Arrange for refreshments for the day of the staged collision
- Responsible for the Celebration of Life culmination after the two day event concludes (recommended to occur within 3 to 4 weeks after the event)
HELL
By Tamisha Hadley

Now I lay me down to sleep, for my soul I shall not weep,

I have given up to hell, trapped inside this prison cell,

Here I lay, here I rot, contemplating things that I am not,

The only sound is my sad sighs until my new sun begins to arise,

The choices that I make will bring it down as my world keeps spinning round and round,

Trying to gain control, trying to feel the flow, wanting to be me again, wanting to have life again, if only I had stayed, if only I had prayed,

IF ONLY I WAS SOBER, But........ If is in the past.

So when you lift up that glass, think of hell, and the spell that overcomes you to drink and to drive, to choose and to lose, to keep the flowing of the booze,

Now it's all over, the brain I did not use, it's hitting the snooze,

Goodnight to all of YOU's.

Trying to gain control…………………………………. trying to feel the flow

If only I had stayed…………………………………….. if only I had prayed

If only.....If only..... If only I was sober……………………………………..

“If”………. is the Past, the past is the end, and I am done, I’m done, I am done AT LAST.

WENT TO A PARTY, MOM
by Molly Devlin 2009

I went to a party,
And remembered what you said.
You told me not to drink, Mom,
so I had a sprite instead.

I felt proud of myself,
The way you said I would,
that I didn’t drink and drive,
though some friends said I should.

I made a healthy choice,
And your advice to me was right.
The party finally ended, and the kids drove out of sight.

I got into my car,
Sure to get home in one piece.
I never knew what was coming, Mom, something I expected least.

Now I’m lying on the pavement,
And I hear the policeman say,
the kid that caused this wreck was drunk,
Mom, his voice seems far away.

My own blood’s all around me,
As I try hard not to cry.
I can hear the paramedic say,
this girl is going to die.

I’m sure the guy had no idea,
While he was flying high.
Because he chose to drink and drive,
now I would have to die.
So why do people do it, Mom
Knowing that it ruins lives?
And now the pain is cutting me,
like a hundred stabbing knives.

Tell sister not to be afraid, Mom
Tell daddy to be brave.
And when I go to heaven,
put "Mommy's Girl" on my grave.

Someone should have taught him,
That it's wrong to drink and drive.
Maybe if his parents had,
I'd still be alive.

My breath is getting shorter,
Mom I'm getting really scared
These are my final moments, and I'm so unprepared.

I wish that you could hold me Mom,
As I lie here and die.
I wish that I could say, "I love you, Mom!"
So I love you and good-bye.

Re: “Every 15 Minutes” Program

On April 18 and 19, 2006, the program “Every 15 Minutes” will be presented at Chugiak High School. On Tuesday, April 18, 2006, at 7:30 AM, a “Grim Reaper” will begin taking pre-selected students out of various classes. The students will become a part of the “Walking Dead”. After the student has been removed, a police officer will enter the classroom and read an obituary. The student may return to class depending upon the amount of time left in class and the time it takes to apply the face make-up, the toe tag, and change into an “Every 15 Minutes” t-shirt. Every attempt will be taken to notify the affected faculty member prior to this interruption.

Upon returning to the classroom, the Walking Dead are not to speak to anyone or respond to anyone talking to them, including faculty and staff. In the event that other students are bothering the “Walking Dead”, trying to get them to laugh or speak, the “Dead” student will write a note to the teacher asking for help in stopping the conversation. Should you see this happening, please intervene on behalf of the “Dead” student.

At 9:10 AM, an announcement will be made for all classes to be dismissed to observe the mock crash. Please treat this as you would a fire drill, moving swiftly to the faculty parking lot. We have 15 minutes to get 1,450 students into the viewing area before the program begins. Direct the students to take their jackets with them and promptly exit the building through the designated exit (A, B, C, or D). Please proceed to your designated observing area as depicted on your map (see large map).

A separate lunch will be provided for the students who participate as “Walking Dead” and crash victims. They will not be allowed to eat with the rest of the student body.

The following day, Wednesday, April 19, 2006, there will be an assembly to conclude the “Every 15 Minutes” program. The students will be curious and may ask you questions. PLEASE DO NOT PROVIDE THE TIME DETAILS ABOUT THE CRASH SCENE OR ASSEMBLY PRIOR TO THESE EVENTS. The element of surprise is a key factor in this program.

School staff, including counselors, will be available for students who are upset. Please have someone escort these students to the attendance office for supervision, if necessary. Thank you for your assistance in helping make this program a success.

Re: Every 15 Minutes 2009 Program

On April 21 and 22, 2009, the program “Every 15 Minutes” will be presented again at Chugiak High School. On Tuesday, April 21, 2009, at 7:30 AM, a “Grim Reaper” will begin taking pre-selected students out of various classes (see attached list). The students will become a part of the “Walking Dead”. After the student has been removed, a police officer will enter the classroom and read an obituary. The student may return to class depending upon the amount of time left in class and the time it takes to apply the face make-up and change into an “Every 15 Minutes” tee shirt. Please allow for the disruption the notifications will cause in your classroom.

Upon returning to the classroom, the Walking Dead are not to speak to anyone or respond to anyone talking to them, including faculty and staff. In the event that other students are bothering the “Walking Dead”, trying to get them to laugh or speak, the “Dead” student will write a note to the teacher asking for help in stopping the conversation. Should you see this happening, PLEASE intervene on behalf of the “Dead” student.

At 9:10 AM, an announcement will be made for all classes to be dismissed to observe the mock crash. Please treat this as you would a fire drill, moving swiftly to the faculty parking lot. We have 15 minutes to get 1,300 students into the viewing area before the program begins. Direct the students to take their jackets with them and promptly exit the building through the designated exit (A, B, C, or D) on the east side of the building. Please proceed to your designated observing area as depicted on your map (see large map).

A separate lunch will be provided for the students who participate as “Walking Dead” in Room 62. They will NOT be allowed to eat lunch with the rest of the student body. When classes resume after lunch, the Walking Dead will return to their regular class schedules.

The following day, Wednesday, April 22, 2009, there will be a Memorial assembly to conclude the “Every 15 Minutes” program. At the end of the assembly, the student body will witness the reunion of the participants with their families, with whom they have not spoken for over 24 hours.

The students will be curious and may ask you questions. PLEASE DO NOT PROVIDE THE TIME DETAILS ABOUT THE CRASH SCENE OR ASSEMBLY PRIOR TO THESE EVENTS. The element of surprise is a key factor in this program.

School staff, including counselors, will be available for students who are upset. Please have someone escort these students to the attendance office for supervision, if necessary.

INSTRUCTIONS TO FACULTY/STAFF FOR
“EVERY 15 MINUTES” - 2006

To: Chugiak HS Faculty and Staff
From: Wendi Shackelford, Kathy Vik, Leha Uehling
Date: March 2006
Re: “Every 15 Minutes” Program

On April 18, 2006, ALL Chugiak High staff need to park in the open lot where the portable buildings used to be located OR on the north side of the building by the football field. We will have a lot of additional people on campus that day and we would like to have them park in the front of the building by the main entrance. No one will be allowed to park east of the recycling shed in the faculty parking lot (see small map).

The mock collision will take place on the campus of Chugiak High School, specifically the faculty parking lot on the east side of the building. An announcement will be made in the morning (approx 9:10 AM) for your classes to proceed immediately to the crash location. Students will need to have their coats with them PRIOR to second hour. We only have 15 minutes to get 1,450 students assembled before the program commences.

Second hour teachers are responsible to assist their students in promptly exiting the building through the designated exits (A, B, C, or D). Please proceed with your class to your designated observation area as depicted on your event map. Program staff will be on duty to assist with placement. You are responsible for the students in your class. (see attached event maps and two day schedule for additional details).

Should you observe a student having EXTREME difficulty during the crash scene, please locate an administrator or security for guidance. A counselor will be made available if necessary. Remember that the majority of viewers will have difficulty with this experience but will also be able to tolerate the stress.

Additionally, the “Every 15 Minutes” staff is made up of volunteer students and adults. The student staff members will play a significant role in preparing for this program and may miss classes while conducting their duties. They will be wearing a white “Every 15 Minutes” t-shirt. If you wish to verify that a student is part of the “Every 15 Minutes” staff, or if you have any questions about your participation in this program, please contact Ms. Vik @ 742-3239, Officer Shackelford @ 742-3219, or Ms Uehling @ 742-3224. Thank you for your help.

INSTRUCTIONS TO FACULTY/STAFF FOR
“EVERY 15 MINUTES” - 2009

To: Chugiak HS Faculty and Staff
From: Wendi Shackelford, Kathy Vik, Leha Uehling
Date: April 14, 2009
Re: Every 15 Minutes 2009 Program

On April 21, 2009, ALL Chugiak High staff need to park in the open lot where the portable buildings used to be located OR on the north side of the building by the football field. We will have a lot of additional people on campus that day and we would like to have them park in the front of the building by the main entrance. No one will be allowed to park east of the recycling shed in the faculty parking lot (see small map).

The mock collision will take place on the campus of Chugiak High School, specifically the faculty parking lot on the east side of the building. An announcement will be made in the morning (approx 9:10 AM) for your classes to proceed immediately to the crash location. Students will need to have their jackets with them PRIOR to second hour. We only have 15 minutes to get 1,300 students assembled before the program commences. First hour teachers, please remind your students to keep their coats with them until lunch.

Second hour teachers are responsible to assist their students in promptly exiting the building through the designated exits (A, B, C, or D). Please proceed with your class to your designated observation area as depicted on your event map. Program staff will be on duty to assist with placement. You are responsible for the students in your class. (see attached event maps and two day schedule for additional details).

Should you observe a student having EXTREME difficulty during the crash scene, please locate an administrator or security for guidance. A counselor will be made available if necessary. Remember that the majority of viewers will have difficulty with this experience but will also be able to tolerate the stress.

Additionally, the “Every 15 Minutes” staff is made up of volunteer students and adults. The student staff members will play a significant role in preparing for this program and may miss classes while conducting their duties. They will be wearing a white “Every 15 Minutes” t-shirt. If you wish to verify that a student is part of the “Every 15 Minutes” staff, or if you have any questions about your participation in this program, please contact Ms. Vik @ 742-3239, Officer Shackelford @ 742-3219, or Ms Uehling @ 742-3224.

Thank you for your help.

Facts of the case - 2006

Defendant: DUBIN, Samantha

Birthdate: 1-14-1988

Criminal History: None

Community ties: Eagle River community for 18 years

Facts:

On 4-18-2006 at 0910 hours, Samantha DUBIN was the driver of a 1991 maroon Buick Park Avenue, AK plate DWZ 331, while she was impaired by alcohol. Upon entering the parking lot on the east side of Chugiak High School at 16525 South Birchwood Loop, Dubin struck another vehicle head-on, a 1987 silver Chevy Spectrum, AK plate CKS 951, driven by Kori RADCLIFFE, age 18. Radcliffe was trapped in the car with a compound leg fracture and had to be freed by the responding Chugiak Volunteer Fire Department rescuers.

Two students were killed upon impact: Christine FLEGLE, age 17, a passenger in Radcliffe’s car and Brooke HANES, age 17, a passenger in Dubin’s car.

Five others were injured, some severely. Amanda HESSER, age 18, was in Radcliffe’s car and sustained severe head trauma. She had to be transported by helicopter to Providence Hospital for immediate medical attention. Her heart stopped in the emergency room, but she was revived through CPR by hospital staff. She is now a quadriplegic. Matt DEVLIN, age 18, a passenger in Dubin’s car, was impaled in the shoulder by a screwdriver loose in the passenger compartment of that car. Haley HUTCHINS, age 17, sustained a broken arm in the crash and Eric PINARD-JANISCH, age 17, injured his ear. Both were passengers in Radcliffe’s car.

At the scene, APD officers observed Dubin had slurred speech, red, watery eyes, and poor balance. They could smell a strong odor of alcoholic beverages on her breath. She admitted having a “few beers” before school “to relax.” She was taken into custody and provided a breath alcohol sample of .100 g/210L at 1000 hours.

Facts of the case

Defendant:

DEVLIN, Molly

Birthdate:

7-12-1991

Criminal History:

None

Community ties:

Chugiak community for 14 years

Facts:

On 4-21-2009 at 0910 hours, Molly DEVLIN was the driver of a 1994 green Ford Ranger pickup, AK plate FFF 257, while she was impaired by alcohol. Upon entering the parking lot on the east side of Chugiak High School at 16525 South Birchwood Loop, DEVLIN struck another vehicle head-on, a 1990 white Ford Tempo, AK plate FLB 305, driven by Victoria LOMEN, age 16. LOMEN, who was not wearing her seatbelt, died of internal injuries sustained in the collision shortly after being transported to Providence Hospital.

Amanda LANDON, age 18, was a passenger in the bed of DEVLIN’s truck when she was ejected upon impact with LOMEN’s car. Witnesses reported seeing a passenger riding in the bed of a similar vehicle that was driving erratically through the neighborhood just minutes before the crash. Vennessa SPURLING, age 18, the front seat passenger in DEVLIN’s truck, was not wearing her seatbelt and suffered minimal injury. It is unknown whether LANDON and SPURLING were also under the influence of alcohol at the time of the collision.

Several other students were injured in the collision. Chris WOOD, age 17, who played quarterback for the 2008 Varsity football team, was a passenger in LOMEN’s car and sustained severe trauma to his upper arm. It is unknown if the injury will affect his senior year as quarterback for the Mustangs. Both Kayla MURPHY, age 18, and Shannon LACE, age 17, were wearing their seatbelts, but upon impact, they hit heads and sustained mild concussions. Both were passengers in LOMEN’s car and are expected to make a full recovery.

At the scene, APD officers observed DEVLIN had slurred speech, red, watery eyes, and poor balance. They could smell a strong odor of alcoholic beverages on her breath. She admitted having a “few beers” before school “to relax.” She was taken into custody and provided a breath alcohol sample of .100 g/210L at 1000 hours.
Defendant’s character:

Her parents say “Molly is a caring individual and well liked by others. She is a good friend to those who are in need. Molly wants to be a special education teacher when she graduates from Chugiak High School in May.”

PARENT INFORMATION LETTER - 2006

EVERY 15 MINUTES

January 2006

Dear Parent/Guardian:

A docu-drama, called Every 15 Minutes will be presented at Chugiak High School on April 18 and 19, 2006. This program includes various components to educate students on the consequences of drinking and driving. We are looking for volunteers to enact various roles within this event that includes:

- The Walking Dead – The Grim Reaper visits classrooms throughout the day, taking a student. The student returns to class with a white face, a toe tag on their wrist, and wearing an “Every 15 Minutes” T-Shirt, signifying a fatality. An obituary of the student is read to their classmates. (24 students needed)
- Mock Crash Victims – A mock alcohol related crash is re-enacted at the school with various city agencies responding as if the crash was a real event. Victims with mock crash related injuries are needed (7 students needed). One student will be prosecuted by law enforcement for driving under the influence (1 student needed).
- Evening retreat for student participants – All participating students (Walking Dead and crash victims) will be transported to a retreat site where they will participate in a discussion seminar related to alcohol and driving. The students will be chaperoned throughout the evening and will return to school the following day.
- School assembly – The event will conclude with a school assembly which is held on the second day.
- Parents/Guardians – The role of parents/guardians will vary depending on the role for which their child is selected.

The students must meet the following criteria to be considered a viable candidate for a Walking Dead or crash victim role:

- Junior or Senior status in 2006 - This event will be held again in 2008, where current Freshman and Sophomores will be the participants
- Willingness to have a serious attitude about the event
- Must hold a 2.0 GPA with no failing grades
- No disciplinary problems - If past disciplinary problems have occurred, approval from a school counselor or administrator must be given
- Willingness to spend a night away from home
- Have a set of clothes that may get damaged by use on the days of the event
- Parent or Guardian permission and full support of your participation – They also must be willing to waive liability
- Willingness to speak during the school assembly - Only a few of the participants will be asked to read their letter to their parents
- Females – Must be willing to wear little or no make-up the day of the event

Collision victims - additional criteria:

- Willingness to be in a vehicle where an actual death may have occurred
- Willingness to be made-up as a collision victim (Fake blood, etc…)
- Willingness to be handled by Ambulance, Fire Department, Coroner or Hospital personnel
- Willingness to be processed through a correctional facility
- Willingness to travel by ambulance
- One volunteer willing to travel by helicopter to the hospital – This is still an option that is being discussed
If you and your teen would like to volunteer for this extremely powerful docu-drama, please complete the permission letter. An Every 15 Minutes committee member will contact you with information about a future meeting to be held at the school. Please visit the Chugiak High School web site http://www.asdk12.org/schools/chugiak/pages/ and click on “Every 15 Minutes at CHS 2005-2006.”

You can fax the completed permission letter to 742-3220 or email it to t_hemmert@msn.com or wshackelford@muni.org. Please feel free to contact me at 622-8144 with questions.

EVERY 15 MINUTES
Permission Letter

To: Every 15 Minutes Death Notification Committee

I give permission for my child to participate in the Every 15 Minutes docu-drama, which will be held on April 18 and 19, 2006. I would like him/her to participate in one of the following roles:

Place an “X” in one of the following:
- □ Walking Dead (24 needed)
- □ Injured Crash Site Victim (7 needed)
- □ ‘Intoxicated’ Driver (1 needed)

I understand that by giving my permission this does not guarantee that my child will be selected, but that his/her name will be entered into a pool of applicants for consideration based on the pre-determined criteria.

________________ (parent/guardian initials)

I understand that I, as a parent/guardian, have responsibilities to participate in this event, depending on which role my teen is selected for and that those responsibilities will be explained in depth at a meeting to be held at Chugiak High School on a future date. At the conclusion of that meeting, I have the right to withdraw my child’s name for consideration for any reason or change the role I would have them portray.

________________ (parent/guardian initials)

I understand that my child will be asked to interview for the role selected above.

________________ (parent/guardian initials)

I understand that any information I provide on the applications about my child or myself will not be used or forwarded to anyone or any agency outside of the Every 15 Minutes steering committee without my written or verbal permission.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR PARTICIPANTS IN
“EVERY 15 MINUTES” - 2006

Student and parent participants play a very important role in the “Every 15 Minutes” school-based program. You are a part of the team helping young people understand the trauma resulting from poor decisions regarding drinking and driving. You will also assist those who provide disaster-related services in developing their skills.

Participants and their parents must attend ONE of two MANDATORY orientation meetings which are scheduled for March 7 and 16, 2006 at 7:00 pm. These meetings will be held in the library at Chugiak High School.

All student volunteers will be interviewed for their respective roles during the week of March 13 to 17 and March 27 to 31, 2006. Interviews will be held during the students’ lunch periods and they will be photographed at that time. This photograph will be used during the memorial assembly on April 19, 2006. All required forms are due at the time of the student interviews.

Should you have any questions about the orientation meeting, please contact Chairman Tod Hemmert at 622-8144.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR WALKING DEAD PARTICIPANTS - 2006

1. You will need to bring your overnight bag, sleeping bag, and a pillow for the retreat to the make-up room (Room 62) prior to going to your first class the morning of the program.

2. Avoid wearing make-up. No special clothing is necessary, however, be aware that the clothing worn might be damaged during the day’s events.

3. An adult dressed as the Grim Reaper will escort you from class sometime during the day. A uniformed police officer will enter the classroom after you leave to read your obituary. You will be taken to the make-up room and turned into the Walking Dead. You will return to class but you cannot communicate to anyone nor respond to those who speak to you for the remainder of the day. If you experience difficulty with other students harassing you, please write a note to your teacher asking them to intervene.

4. You will report to Room 62 for lunch. You will not be allowed to eat lunch with the rest of the student body.

5. At 1:15 PM, all Walking Dead victims will report to the make-up room. The Grim Reaper will lead you and other members of the crash site to transportation that will take you to the retreat site. This transportation will depart at 1:30 PM from the high school and it is MANDATORY.

6. You will attend a retreat that night to process the day’s activities.

7. Plan on bringing items you will need for that evening and the next morning for the assembly. Plan to sleep in a sweat suit or shorts and t-shirt that you pack. No sheer or transparent pajamas or any inappropriate clothing will be permitted.

8. The following items are NOT allowed at the retreat: I-pods, CD players, movie players, cell phones, pagers, radios, walkmans, and similar items. Remember for all intents and purposes you are dead and will NOT be allowed to communicate with the world outside the retreat until after the memorial assembly.
9. The following morning, you will be transported back to school where you will participate in a memorial assembly. You will remain segregated from the rest of the student body until AFTER the assembly. This includes no communication with others. Instructions for the assembly will be explained at the retreat.

10. You will need to pack black pants or other dark clothing to wear at the assembly. You will be wearing your “Every 15 Minutes” black t-shirt during the assembly, but you may want to bring other clothing to change into after the assembly has concluded.
INSTRUCTIONS FOR CRASH VICTIMS - 2006

1. You will need to bring your overnight bag, sleeping bag, and a pillow for the retreat to the make-up room (Room 62) prior to going to your first class the morning of the program.

2. Wear clothing that can be disposed of after the exercise since outer clothing may be cut, torn, or otherwise rendered unsuitable for future wear. Clothing worn during the event need not be in good condition.

3. Avoid wearing jewelry or make-up. Remove eyeglasses and contact lenses.

4. Staff will apply make-up that looks realistic for the type of injury inflicted. They will instruct you how to behave during the crash scene. You do not need to have special acting skills, just the ability to follow directions. Before the mock crash is presented to the entire student body, you will be taken to the scene. Victims will be placed within the crash scene and last minute make-up applied. When everyone is in place, the program will begin. Crash victims may include:

   a. DRUNK DRIVER – This person will be removed from the crash scene vehicle, questioned by a police officer, given road side sobriety tests, handcuffed, placed in the police car, and transported to a location where he/she will be given a breath test and booked into jail. A presiding judge will conduct a mock court hearing and the drunk driver (AKA defendant) will be sentenced to prison.

   b. MAJOR INJURY VICTIMS – These people will have suffered major injuries due to not wearing their safety belts and will be treated accordingly by emergency personnel. They will be placed in an ambulance and transported to the designated hospital for emergency room treatment. These victims will survive the crash. Parents will report to the hospital after notification by a police officer.

   c. MINOR INJURY VICTIMS – These people will have suffered minor injuries. They will be treated accordingly by emergency personnel, placed in an ambulance or a police car and transported to the designated hospital for emergency room treatment. These victims will survive the crash. Parents will report to the hospital after notification by a police officer.

d. FATALITIES – These people will be playing the role of passengers who are either killed at the scene or die at the hospital.

Dead at the scene will be covered with a sheet and left in the crash scene while the other victims are treated by EMS. Parents of the dead student will be required to come to the crash scene to identify their child. Upon the parents’ departure, the dead at the scene will be placed in a body bag and transported to the morgue by the medical examiner or a police officer.

Dead at the hospital will be treated by staff at the hospital. Parents will be required to come to the hospital. Death notification will be conducted by hospital staff and/or hospital clergy.

5. You will report to Room 62 for lunch. You will not be allowed to eat lunch with the rest of the student body.

6. At 1:15 PM, all crash scene victims will report to the make-up room. The Grim Reaper will lead you and other members of the Walking Dead to transportation that will take you to the retreat site. This transportation will depart at 1:30 PM from the high school and it is MANDATORY.

7. Plan on bringing items you will need for that evening and the next morning for the assembly. Plan to sleep in a sweat suit or shorts and t-shirt that you pack. No sheer or transparent pajamas or any inappropriate clothing will be permitted.

8. The following items are not allowed at the retreat: I-pods, CD players, movie players, cell phones, pagers, radios, walkmans, and similar items. Remember for all intents and purposes you are dead and will not be allowed to communicate with the world outside the retreat.

9. The following morning, you will be transported back to school where you will participate in a memorial assembly. You will remain segregated from the rest of the student body until AFTER the assembly. This includes no communication with others. Instructions for the assembly will be explained at the retreat.

10. You will need to pack black pants or other dark clothing to wear at the assembly. You will be wearing your “Every 15 Minutes” black t-shirt during the assembly, but you may want to bring other clothing to change into after the assembly has concluded.
SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS FOR FAMILY MEMBERS OF
STUDENTS PARTICIPATING IN “EVERY 15 MINUTES” - 2006

1. There are no dress requirements for the parents/guardians of participants. You may desire to wear comfortable clothing during this event.

2. Prepare an obituary regarding your daughter/son and have it returned with the rest of the attached documents at the time of your child’s interview. This is a required part of the program, so please be sure to meet this deadline.

3. You will receive a mock death notification from a uniform police officer sometime during the day between 7:30 am and 3:00 pm on April 18, 2006. We will know where you are physically located during these hours ONLY if you provide the necessary information on the enclosed form. Submit this form with the rest of the attached documents at the time of your child’s interview. This also is a required part of the program, so please be sure to meet this deadline.

4. Parents of the mock crash victims will be contacted and asked to come to the designated hospital.

5. After school, on the first day of the event, your child will be taken to the site of the overnight retreat. Responsible adults, including school staff, will serve as the chaperones supervising this activity.

6. Professionals will lead the students in a reflection on the day’s activities at the retreat.
One of these activities will include the students’ writing letters to their parents regarding their experiences and premature death. You will receive this letter after the assembly on the following day.

7. The following electronic items are not allowed at the retreat: I-pods, CD players, cell phones, pagers, radios, walkmans, and similar items. Remember for all intents and purposes the student is dead and will not be allowed to communicate with the world outside the retreat. You will be provided with contact numbers of staff in the event of an emergency.

8. Students should plan to sleep in the sweat pants/shorts and T-shirts that they pack.
NO sheer or transparent pajamas or any other inappropriate clothing will be permitted.
9. Retreat participants will be transported to school the next morning. You will experience the simulated loss of your child by not being allowed to have ANY contact with them until AFTER the assembly at Chugiak High School concludes.

10. Parents(s)/Guardian(s) of all the students participating are encouraged to attend the morning assembly at Chugiak High School on April 19, 2006 at 8:40 AM. Please be early so you may be properly seated in the gymnasium. Please wait to reunite with your child until AFTER the assembly concludes so your child will remain in their proper role.

11. To be selected as participants, you and your child need to COMPLETELY fill out and sign the enclosed forms. Please have your child return ALL the documents to the “Every 15 Minutes” committee members at the time of their interview.

Dear __________,

Every 15 Minutes someone in the United States dies as the result of an alcohol related traffic collision. Today you died. I never had the chance to tell you, many, many things: Of course, there are all the things any parent would write in a letter such as this: I never had a chance to tell you one more time how very much I love you. I never had a chance to tell you how much I love your smile, your sense of humor, your dedication to your little brother, your responsibility in taking care of the cat. I never had the chance to tell you how my heart beat an extra beat every time you touched my shoulder when you walked by my special reading chair. I never had a chance to share with you a memory of a special moment when you were seven when I realized for the first time I didn’t only have a daughter, I had a very best friend for life. I never will have the chance to be grandma to your own daughter. Opportunities gone. Experiences never to be enjoyed. Regrets, though? None.

I can feel you as if you were still standing right behind me as I write, your right hand firmly on my left shoulder. My regrets are none because we had “the talk.” In fact, unlike most families, we had many of those “talks.” Remember when I first shared with you how I had participated in an activity at my high school called “Every 15 Minutes” and you declared that you, too, wanted that same experience? It was the month before your thirteenth birthday. Remember how I showed you the letter Grandma had written to me and my admission of astonishment at not even knowing my parents had those words inside them. Actually, the words didn’t matter. It was the feelings. From then on, to this day, we remain perfectly connected, able to share everything.

Do you remember? It was a day much like today — spring-like here in Alaska, buds almost about to pop on the birch trees, but still mostly brown and gray. With the promise of new life, you carefully folded Grandma’s letter, placed it in your jeans’ back pocket, and we took a walk in the sunshine. You said, “Mom, I do want to hear what you’d write to me in a letter after I died, but can I first tell you what I’d write to you?” We walked and we talked and we shared every memory, even those we didn’t know we had. We made promises about honesty and sacrifice. We made commitments about putting family first. We came up with “code” words and gestures to indicate a whole slew of possible hiccups in our relationship: “Hurt” would be the word to use when we felt pain about something one of us said and we needed to talk it out. “Ache” would be the word to indicate that someone else had caused pain, but we weren’t quite ready to share the reason just yet. Touching our left ear meant “Get me the heck out of this situation!” I think we’ve come up with a dozen codes over these years, most begun that day. Funny…we never used most of them. We didn’t need to. The hiccups rarely came. That afternoon established an unbreakable bond that would render words unnecessary. All thoughts could be read in our eyes. It was just last month that you told me those jeans were worn out, but that since Grandma’s letter was still neatly folded in the back pocket, you were keeping those jeans. We placed them in a special box and put them in the attic. Remember?

Because of our “talks,” I’m fortunate to have many such letters you’ve written to me. Two are in my pockets right now. At least two will be in my pockets everyday, tiny squares of paper reminiscent of our walk under the trees.

I still feel your hand. I’m sure I’ll always feel your hand. Unfortunately, I’m not permitted to turn around and look into your eyes and read those thoughts. All I can do is hope and pray that you’re all right, that Heaven has a Nordstroms, and maybe that other families can read our letters and be as fortunate as we were. When I finish this letter, I’ll kiss it lightly, fold it neatly and place it in the other back pocket of those jeans upstairs.

And I’m sure this won’t be the last letter added to the pocket. And maybe, just maybe, no one will ever need to have that kind of jeans again. They cost way too much.

For now, with all my love,
Your bestest friend,
Mom

4. APD Dispatch
   786-8900 non-emergencies
   911 emergencies

5. United Methodist
   696-2353 office

DETAILS:

- ALL medication (including birth control, inhalers, and OTC pain killers such as Tylenol, Ibuprofen, etc.) need to be appropriately labeled with the student’s name and given to Chugiak High School Nurse by April 17, 2006.

  o Please complete the attached form, Emergency Field Trip Information, and return it with the medication.

NO STUDENTS WILL BE ALLOWED TO SELF- ADMINISTER ANY MEDICATIONS AT THE RETREAT.

- Your attendance at the Assembly on Wednesday, April 19, 2006 from 8:00 to 9:45 AM is very important. You will be reunited with your child AFTER this assembly.

- You must fax (742-3220), drop off in the Attendance Office, or e-mail your parent letter to Leha UEHLING (uehling_leha@asdk12.org) by Thursday, April 13 at 3:30 PM (see the pink two-paged letter with sample attached)
Walking Dead will eat lunch in a room separate from the rest of the student body on April 18, 2006.

Walking Dead and crash victims should be dropped off at school or have someone retrieve their vehicles during the early evening of April 18, 2006 so they do not sit unattended on school grounds overnight (to avoid vandalism).

FOR CRASH PARTICIPANTS and their PARENTS ONLY:

- Make sure your child has $20.00 cash to purchase lunch at whatever location they end up (hospital, morgue, or jail/courthouse).
- Make sure your child dresses in layers of discardable clothing for the crash scenario. We do not know what the weather will be like and they will be in the crash scene for about an hour and 15 minutes.
- Also, your child’s clothes may be cut off of them by medical personnel as they treat injuries so you will need to bring an extra set of clothes with you to the hospital in a paper bag labeled with your child’s name.

RESPONSIBILITIES for parents of participants:

1 - Parents of Walking Dead:

- Be available at the previously designated location (in the packet signed by you) for official notification by an APD officer between 7:30 AM to 1:00 PM.
- You will not be allowed to have any contact with your child until AFTER the Assembly on April 19, 2006. If there is an emergency in which you need to contact your child, please call Officer Shackelford (see numbers listed above).

2 - Parents of LIVING Crash Victims:

- Be available at the previously designated location (in the packet signed by you) for official notification by an APD officer between 9:20 and 11:30 AM.
- You will be asked by the officer/chaplain if you want to go to the hospital to be with your injured child (Providence Hospital @ 562-2211).
You will need to bring an extra set of clothes for your child WITH YOU TO THE HOSPITAL. Your child’s clothes may be cut off of them by medical personnel as they treat injuries at the scene or hospital.

Your child will be at the hospital until approx 12:30 PM. You may want to bring a companion for moral support or to drive you.

You may or may not be allowed to speak with your child at the hospital. Please follow the guidance of the nursing staff and any EFM staff who is videotaping. PLEASE ALLOW YOUR CHILD TO REMAIN IN THEIR ROLE AS INJURED.

3 - Parents of DEAD Crash Victims:

- Be within 5 minutes drive of Chugiak High School AND available by cell phone.

- Please RESPOND to the crash scene on the east side of Chugiak High School and contact one of the uniformed APD officers @ 9:45 AM, where you will be escorted by an officer to identify your “dead” child within the scene.

  Your child is dead for all intents and purposes. They will have make-up that has been applied to exaggerate that fact. They may also be covered with a sheet or blanket. THIS WILL BE DIFFICULT FOR YOU.

  PLEASE ALLOW YOUR CHILD TO REMAIN IN THEIR ‘DEAD’ ROLE. You may kiss them or touch their hands and cry over them. This should take no more than 8 to 10 minutes duration once you have been taken to your child.

  The Medical Examiner’s office will arrive at 10:00 AM to transport your child to the morgue. You DO NOT still want to be out there when they start loading your dead student.

  Allow the officer (or whoever contacts you) to assist you into the building.

- By 11:00 AM, you must be at the new Courthouse, 825 West 4th Avenue, Courtroom 404 (Judge Morgan CHRISTEN) for an in-custody arraignment. Please park in the Captain Cook garage (between 4th and 5th Avenues at K Street) as it is the closest and will likely have spaces available. Actual time in the courtroom is from 11:30 AM to 12:30 PM.
• You can expect:

To be represented by an attorney from the District Attorney’s office.

You may be asked to make a statement during the in-custody arraignment. Remember the defendant killed your child; do you want them to be free to hurt someone else?

You will be allowed to give a victim impact statement in the courtroom at sentencing. Think about what you would say to the Judge and the defendant who killed your child in a real-life situation.

4 - Parents of Intoxicated driver:

• You will need to bring a set of business attire-type clothes for your child to change into after the in-custody arraignment portion of the courtroom scene. Your child will be allowed a few minutes to clean up and change clothes for the sentencing portion of the courtroom scene.

• By 11:00 AM, you must be at the new Courthouse, 825 West 4th Avenue, Courtroom 404 (Judge Morgan CHRISTEN) for an in-custody arraignment. Please park in the Captain Cook garage (between 4th and 5th Avenues at K Street) as it is the closest and will likely have spaces available. Actual time in the courtroom is from 11:30 AM to 12:30 PM.

• You can expect:

The Judge to ask you how you plan to pay your child’s bail.

A defense attorney, Lance WELLS, will assist you with this, but you will likely put your house up for collateral to guarantee the defendant’s appearance in court at later dates.

Be prepared to speak on the good character qualities of your child at both the in-custody arraignment and the sentencing. Remember your goal is to keep your child out of prison and to minimize the amount of time they have to do in prison (based on their character).
• PLEASE ALLOW YOUR CHILD TO REMAIN IN THEIR ROLE AFTER THE CONCLUSION OF THE COURTROOM SCENE. An APD officer will remain with them and transport your child from the courtroom to the retreat site, stopping for lunch somewhere in-between.

PARTICIPANT ITEMS FOR THE RETREAT

• Label your property in a conspicuous place with your FIRST AND LAST NAME.
• Bring your retreat items with you to school on Tuesday morning.
• Take them to room 62, where they will be stored until the retreat.

1. Sleeping bag
2. Pillow
3. Small air mattress (optional)
4. 1 CARRY-ON SIZED suitcase or similar-sized bag
5. Black “Every 15 Minutes” t-shirt
6. Black pants or skirt (for the assembly)
7. Appropriate sleeping clothes
8. Toiletries
9. Towel
10. 1 extra change of clothes (esp. for crash participants)
11. * Medicines (see page 1)

Attachments: 2 day schedule
Emergency Field Trip Information form (for medication ONLY)

O'MALLEY WRECK KILLS 3
POLICE SAY ALCOHOL A FACTOR IN COLLISION

Rachel D’oro
Daily News Reporter

Two Dimond High School graduates and a friend were killed in South Anchorage early Sunday when their car ran a flashing red light and collided with a pickup truck rushing through a flashing yellow light, police said. Four others were injured in the 2:15 a.m. accident at C Street and O’Malley Road and were taken to Providence Alaska Medical Center. Police Sgt. Andy Jackson said alcohol appears to have been a contributing factor for both drivers, who survived.

The dead were identified as Anchorage residents John-David "JD" Stuart, 23; George W. Crawford, 22; and Carrie E. Warriner, 19, who lived with Stuart and his girlfriend. Stuart and Crawford graduated from Dimond High School — Stuart in 1991 and Crawford in 1993 — and Warriner moved to Anchorage from Sacramento, Calif., last year, according to friends and relatives.

All three were back-seat passengers in a 1990 Plymouth Sundance driven by 21-year-old Chrysti McIntosh of Anchorage, Jackson said. Stuart's girlfriend, 21-year-old Brandy Smith, was riding in the front seat as the five friends left a party and headed north on C Street.

At the O'Malley intersection, the Plymouth went through the flashing red light, Jackson said. Just then, a 1970 GMC truck was going east on O'Malley and never slowed down at the flashing yellow light.

"People don't pay attention to yellow lights," Jackson said. "Or they figure it means to speed up."

The truck broadsided the compact car and spun it around. Stuart, Crawford and Warriner were ejected through the back window and landed well beyond the intersection, Jackson said. All three apparently weren't wearing seat belts and died instantly.

McIntosh was unconscious at the wheel, and rescuers didn't think she would make it, Jackson said. Sunday evening at Providence, McIntosh was listed in serious condition with possible internal injuries, said nursing supervisor Karen Edmondson. Smith was listed in fair condition.

The truck occupants, both of Anchorage, were identified as Allison Enters, 31, and Darren Forth, 23. Enters was listed in satisfactory condition at Providence; Forth was treated and released. It was unclear who was driving, police said.

Police are completing their investigation before deciding whether to cite or arrest anyone. They are looking for any witnesses to the accident.

Jackson said he didn't know how fast the vehicles were going when they collided. But there were no skid marks at the accident scene, indicating neither vehicle used its brakes. "I don't believe either driver saw the other," Jackson said.

Friends and relatives were trying to cope with the deaths Sunday afternoon while working out funeral arrangements.

Crawford, who was a longtime friend of Stuart's, loved airplanes and music since childhood, according to his mother, Alice Crawford. Since he was 10, he was fascinated with planes and finally started taking air traffic controller courses at University of Alaska Anchorage last year, his mother said.

He was the second of three children. "He was my only son," Alice Crawford said.

Music was also Stuart's passion, and he played bass for an Anchorage rock band, 36 Crazy Fists. Last Thursday, the band opened for the popular group Primus at the downtown Egan Center, said his mother, Charlotte Phelps.

"Everyone knew and loved JD; he was a brilliant musician," Phelps said. "I not only lost my own son, I lost another son with George. So many people are affected by this. It's a tragedy from so many different directions."

THREE DEATHS BRING MANSLAUGHTER CHARGES FOR DRIVER

Ron McGee

A driver whose three passengers were killed in a collision this summer on O'Malley Road was charged with three counts of manslaughter Thursday. Both drivers in the two-vehicle accident were charged with drunken driving, according to court documents.

"This is a tragedy for a young woman with no criminal history and a tragedy for the families of the people who died," Assistant District Attorney Steve Branchflower said. "You think it could never happen to you, but it does."

Three friends of Chrysti Anne McIntosh were killed when she disregarded a flashing red light on O'Malley Road at C Street and her car collided with a pickup truck, according to an affidavit by Anchorage police officer Everett Robbins.

McIntosh, 20, had consumed five or six beers at a party before she and four passengers piled into her 1990 Plymouth Sundance, the affidavit said. McIntosh had a blood alcohol level of .135 about 30 minutes after the June 16 collision, the document said. Drivers with a blood alcohol level of .10 or above are presumed intoxicated in Alaska. The pickup driver, Darin T. Forth, did not slow down for a flashing yellow light in the intersection, the affidavit said. Forth, 23, had a blood alcohol level of .232 a little more than an hour after the collision, the sworn statement said.

McIntosh was charged with three counts of manslaughter, two counts of assault, driving while intoxicated and possession of alcohol by a minor. Three of McIntosh's passengers, -- John-David "JD" Stuart, 23; George W. Crawford, 22; and Carrie E. Warriner, 19 -- were killed when they were thrown from the rear hatchback, police said.

Brandy Smith, a passenger in McIntosh's front seat, suffered a fractured leg and multiple cuts and bruises to the face and chest, the affidavit said. McIntosh sustained injuries to the liver, spleen, left kidney, ribs and vertebrae in the collision.

Forth was charged Thursday with driving while intoxicated. Forth, who was convicted of driving while intoxicated in 1993, moved to Florida after the collision, a warrant has been issued for his arrest, Branchflower said.

A summons was issued Thursday for McIntosh, who now lives in Kenai, he said.

Topic — Impaired Driving, Speed and Seat Belt Safety

Do you really know how impaired driving can affect your life? Michael Buckingham knows what it’s like to be pinned inside a blazing car - the victim of an impaired driver - and what it’s like to cope with the aftermath.

Do most of us really know how impaired driving can affect our life? Michael Buckingham does. Michael’s career as a state trooper with the Washington State Patrol ended when he suffered terrible injuries in a crash caused by impaired driving. Michael has the right to ask each and every one of us to do whatever we can to prevent impaired driving crashes.

Michael is a powerful speaker. He uses a combination of humour and often gut-wrenching realism to take his audience through his crash. Michael has first-hand knowledge of the pain - emotional as well as physical - that such a crash leaves in its wake. By the time he’s finished, you will agree with his message of “zero tolerance for impaired driving.”

Michael is a strong advocate of proper use of safety devices. The failure of his seat belt left him pinned inside a blazing vehicle, unconscious. It almost cost him his life.

Michael’s dynamic, upbeat presentation inspires the members of his audience to become champions of safer road use in their own lives.

SPONSORSHIP LETTER 2006

Chugiak High School has embarked on a mission…becoming the pilot school of a very powerful program called Every 15 Minutes. This two-day docu-drama will provide our students with a hard-hitting, realistic dramatization of the aftermath of a fatal alcohol-related car crash. We will challenge our students to think about drinking, personal safety, and the responsibility of making mature decisions when lives are involved.

The program will be held on April 18 and 19, 2006 at Chugiak High School, right before Prom. It is designed to create awareness among students that they are not invincible and allows them to experience first hand how their actions affect the lives of so many others. After participating in the Every 15 Minutes program, our hope is that Chugiak students will be less likely to drive after drinking and less likely to be passengers in the car with someone who has been.

For this program to be successful, we need your help! Please partner with us as we attempt to save our children from making potentially life-altering decisions. There are so many ways you can assist us; through the gift of your time, money, or donation of company services.

Please contact Officer Wendi Shackelford or Ms. Kathy Vik if you would like to partner with the students and staff at Chugiak High School. For your financial records, the tax identification number for the Chugiak High School FCCLA program is 92-6002883.

Thank you in advance for any considerations made in helping us help our students make it to their futures!

On April 21, 2009, Chugiak High School will be hosting a MOCK drunk driving simulation in which real emergency vehicles will be responding to the school parking lot. THIS IS ONLY A SIMULATION! It is designed to show teens the real life impact of drinking and driving, without the real life consequences. On April 22, 2009, the simulation will conclude with a memorial assembly involving a hearse and coffin.

Every 15 Minutes at Chugiak High School

On September 29, 2005, we had our second meeting in preparation for the Every 15 Minutes program at Chugiak High School. The actual event will occur on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 18 and 19, 2006. We started assigning ourselves to various teams: the Coordination Team (AKA Steering Committee), Video Productions and Media, Sponsors and Public Relations, Crash Site and Hospital, Death Notifications, Student Retreat, School/Community Assembly, Debriefing, Counselors, and Legal Support. We have PLENTY of work waiting for additional adults and students to assist in preparations. No one will be turned away!

Please see the Chugiak High School web site for updated information on meetings as well as the responsibilities of each of the above-listed teams. Go to www.asdk12.org/schools/chugiak/pages, and then click on Every 15 Minutes at CHS 2005-06.

The Steering Committee, comprised of adults and students which head each of the individual committees, met on October 3. We agreed upon a logo to identify the CHS program, which will eventually be posted on the web site.

Meetings will continue to occur at 7 PM on the second Monday and the fourth Thursday of each month (except for Thanksgiving) in room 102 at Chugiak High School until a lot of the groundwork is laid. The next meetings will occur October 10, October 27, and November 14, 2005.

For additional information or to volunteer, please contact Kathy Vik at 742-3239 or Wendi Shackelford at 742-3219.

I have read this form and completed this form to the best of my ability. It is the sole responsibility of my child (the student) to bring along any necessary medication and to self-administer it as prescribed by their doctor. My child understand she/he CANNOT SHARE ANY MEDICATION WITH OTHERS.

I also understand that if my child requires medical attention, it will be covered as specified by the ISIC insurance purchased for this trip. I acknowledge that this insurance does NOT cover any self-inflicted injury (such as drug overdose or alcohol poisoning) and that I am financially liable for any medical care needed to preserve my child's life, as well as the cost of airfare to send my child home so that he or she may recover.

Release of Liability

The Anchorage School District policy requires that students travel to and from school sponsored events via School District transportation. However, there are some instances that travel by personal vehicle occurs.

If you would like your son or daughter to travel to a school sponsored event by means other than school transportation, please complete this form below. Students who ride with other students to and from school sponsored events do so at their own risk. The ASD endeavors to obtain confirmation of insurance for private vehicle transportation; however, the ASD does not certify that private vehicles have adequate insurance coverage.

I give permission for my son/daughter, a student at Chugiak High School, to attend any sponsored event of his/her choosing by means of private transportation.
I release the ASD of all responsibility and liability during such travel. This release of liability is in effect for one year from the date indicated.

Date: ____________________________
Dear Brooke,

Every 15 Minutes someone in the United States dies as the result of an alcohol related traffic collision. Today you died.

I can’t begin yet to comprehend the sense of loss that I know is coming. Your sister Brittany, your brother Beck – you called him Becky – and I, we’re just stumbling around in a fog, trying to get through these first few days. But I can see it coming. It feels like we’re tied up on a railroad track and there’s nothing we can do to stop this big old train of grief and loss that’s going to slam into us. I can see the light, I can hear the whistle.

Man, this is going to hurt – for a long time.

But as you now know with certainty, we don’t grieve without hope. I know what happened to you when you died, and I know I’ll see you again. You can’t believe what a difference that makes for me right now, and how thankful I am for that.

In fact, I have a lot to be thankful for. You did that for me Brooke, you gave my life so much that I really valued, and for which I was, and am, really thankful. We had a special connection, you and I. Of the three kids in the family, you were the most like me. When you were little, you even looked like me. People used to laugh and say, “Put a mustache on her, and it’s Gordon Jr.” There was a time when you thought that was really cool. Then came the day when it wasn’t quite so cool anymore, and it definitely was NOT a compliment when people saw the resemblance between you and me. Fortunately, you quickly outgrew looking like me and became a beautiful young lady. We shared a lot of other things in common too, and I’ll really miss the fact that someone with whom I had the connection of having so much in common is no longer in my world.

I don’t know if you believed me when I used to tell you that I admired who you were. I used to look at you and wonder where you came from – you were such a neat little person, and such a great kid. I don’t think I ever told you to go do your homework and you always were an honor student. It almost got embarrassing that until you got into high school, every teacher you ever had went out of their way to tell us how much they loved having you in class, what a joy you were, how they wished they had a whole class of kids like you, and on and on and on. I’ve heard that from some of your high school teachers as well. So what was the deal with that? Why were you such a neat kid, so easy to love, so incredibly responsible, so content with doing the right thing – such a better kid than I was at your age?

I think it was about your heart, Brooke. I always thought, and I told you this often, I think there was something special about you. You had a tender heart Brooke, and yeah, I think it was a God thing. I saw that tender heart love openly and fully. I saw countless people impacted by you. I saw life hurt your heart and watched you take measures to protect it. I saw you begin to again open your heart to love and life, now with the wisdom and maturity of having come through some hard things but with the essential characteristics of your heart intact. You loved hard, you loved unconditionally, you loved cautiously and wisely. You loved well.

With all three of you kids, I have been blessed to have special points of connection. In our relationship Brooke, you were most proud of the place you had as the youngest daughter. My Baby Girl. You used to sign your cards and notes to me; Always and forever, your baby Girl. That really is a special thing and is a special kind of connection. And that is a place that you alone in this universe can occupy. Even your death can’t change that.

You will always and forever be my Baby Girl

I so miss my Baby Girl

What words should I have used?
How could I have said it?
Would one more time make it real, make it stick?

Throughout your life, I taught you many lessons, some you learned and accepted without a second thought, others were hard for you to believe.

You accepted that $2 + 2 = 4$, was this lesson so different?

Some of life’s lessons have to be learned on your own, with consequences that are your own.

I was willing to accept that you would eventually learn that cleaning your room was a better alternative than living in a pig sty, that brushing your teeth regularly was less painful than having a cavity drilled, that saving your money left you options down the road, that hard work pays off with good grades and positive opportunities.

All of these things we discussed again and again, “I know dad, I know!”, you said.

But I thought that we agreed, when you get behind the wheel that there sits with you the responsibility to be cautious, that it was better to stop than go, if you weren’t sure. Were you sure that night that what you were doing was right and that you should continue on your way? Or did all our discussions echo in your head, only to be pushed away.

There were many times that I didn’t bring it up, again, because you always said you knew. Had I said it just one more time, would it have made you really understand? Is that the difference? Where is the line, the balance between teaching and nagging?

You are gone now, to where ever it is we go. The lesson has been learned, but cannot be shared. There is another kid down the street that also does not believe.

What words should his father use?
How could his father say it?
Would one more time make it real, make it stick?

Love Dad.

Copyright 2006
Dear Mikey,
There are very few things I never got a chance to tell you but there are some things I don’t think you understood completely. The first being how much Dad and I love you. Maybe that’s just taken for granted but it shouldn’t be. Also son that we “like” you.
Some people don’t really like the person their kids become but that isn’t true with you. You have always been strong and have always wanted to stand up for your beliefs, but you’ve always been there for anyone who needs someone to talk to. You believe in god and your family and your country no matter where you are right now you are a large force in my life and always will be. I love you forever son.

Dear Madison,

Every 15 minutes someone in the United States dies as the result of an alcohol related traffic collision. Today you died. We never had the chance to tell you once again how very proud we are of you and how very much you were loved and always will be.

From the moment we first saw you, with that full head of curly brown hair, and beautiful big eyes, we knew our hearts would never be the same. Loving your child simply changes everything for parents. Nothing that we thought was important before you were born had any significance for us anymore. You and your sister became the center of our thoughts, hopes, promises and future. Unfortunately, now that you have left us, those hopes, promises and future events have been irreparably damaged. The dreams you had and those we shared with you will never occur. This world will be a different place for us. Our hopes that you would become a light shining on others in this world, has instead become a sad, but humble belief that you are now sharing your light in the presence of God and his angels.

This world would have been a better place, if you had lived Maddie, because this world needs wonderful, compassionate nurses that we believe you would have been. This world will miss the wonderful laughter, wit and fearlessness that you so often demonstrated in everything you did. Your little sister will never know the joys of being the maid of honor at your wedding, a loving aunt to your children, or being your best friend as you both grew old. We as your parents, will miss out on the beautiful smiles that graced your lips, the beautiful voice that sang grace at family gathers, the hugs you gave with your long beautiful arms, your easy going nature, quick to shed tears, but just as quick to forgive and love.

The list is endless on the things we will never get to share with you now. Our hearts will ache forever until we see you again Maddie. There will never be a time that we won’t think of you when we see mountains to climb, animals to love, cheerleaders cheering, 4-wheelers going crazy, teenage girls dressing up and going shopping, young men taking girls on dates, and girls talking and texting on their phones! You will always be in our hearts and minds.

Maddie, if we could have told you but one thing before you died, it would have been that you are so loved by us, that either one of us would have easily, without question, traded places with you and died in your place, so that you could have lived a full and wonderful life.
But as it is, we can only hope, that those who hear our letter to you, will realize the full length and breadth of love that all parents feel towards their children. Hopefully this realization will help at least one of them not make the horrible mistake of drinking and driving. If it does, then your death will not be in vain.

Until we see you again, in the heavenly realm, our lives will always have an empty spot that cannot be filled. We love you, we loved you, we can’t wait until we see you again.

My dearest Victoria,

Every 15 Minutes someone in the United States dies as the result of an alcohol related traffic collision. Today you died. I never had the chance to tell you, yet again, how much I love you. I wish you would have been at the house this morning so I could have blessed you before I left to work, like I do every morning you are with us. I know you normally sleep through my blessings, but at least now, as I sit here trying to picture that last second I saw you alive, I would have that picture of you lying snug in your bed with my hand upon your forehead as I bless you, and then my kiss upon your forehead. I wonder if you ever noticed how I would kiss your forehead then touch my forehead to yours, whisper “I love you” and then kiss your forehead one more time before I left to work. Did you hear my prayer for you, could you feel my love? I miss you so my dearest daughter and it’s only been one day; how will I survive the rest of my life without you?

I can’t begin to express to you all the “what ifs” that are bouncing through my mind at this very moment. What if I had called you this morning to simply tell you that I love you, then we got into a deep conversation about something, and that made you five minutes late to school. You would still be alive! What if I took away your car because, OK I really don’t have a good reason, but what if I took it away anyway so you weren’t driving yesterday, you would be here right now!! God, that so pains me to know that I won’t see your smiling face again, we won’t have another disagreement that we later sit down and work through together. What if? What if? What if? How I hate those words!

Victoria, did you know that when you were first born I was so concerned because the nurses were bending you in all these different directions to make sure you were OK? I was afraid they were going to break one of your arms or legs. From that very moment I was in “Dad mode” and I wanted to protect you from all harm, you were, I mean you are my baby girl! As you know, I never got over that whole protection thing, and yes I know it drove you nuts these last few years, but it’s hard to change, it’s hard to let go of something that is more important than life itself, my life, not yours!!! I have to ask, what if I drove you to school yesterday? You would still be here. Yeah, you would be mad at me because I drove you and your friends to school, but at least you would be here! I can handle “mad” all day long; I can’t handle “death”, but I guess I don’t have any choice in all of this; I should though, I’m your Dad, it’s my job.

I have some breaking news I wanted to share with you, I’m not a perfect Dad, I made mistakes as I raised you and I’m going to continue to make mistakes with your brothers. I bet the last week you were at the house I made a mistake, (OK, OK, I made more than one) I hope you don’t remember them. Did you know that even as I was messing up as a Dad, maybe being too strict, or not strict enough, all my actions and decisions were based in my never-ending love for you and my desire to prepare you the best I can for your future? Even now as I type this paragraph I know you don’t remember my mistakes because you always had such a forgiving heart towards me; for that I am so thankful, for our relationship, our friendship, for what we had as father and daughter!! I am so proud to say that you are my daughter!

My dearest, I know you see the pain, the anguish that your family is going through right now and I know that pains your tender heart. I know you are crying for us, but don’t because we will be OK. We all know you are with Jesus and that makes us happy for you! The struggles of life have ended for you and the joy of eternity in heaven has begun; we will see you again my dearest. At this moment it won’t be soon enough, but I know it will be in God’s time, and no matter what I think, that is the right time.

Victoria, my dearest daughter, my first born, my sweet, I am so thankful that God chose me to be your father, what an honor and privilege it has been and I am so thankful for every day that we had together! I know you are in heaven; you are there with Granny and Bapa, Dominick and Lucky, too. Please tell them each how much they are loved and how much they are missed, and give Lucky a pat on the head.

Did I tell you that you are such a blessing to me? Just to let you know, I miss you even more now, at the end of this letter, than I did at the beginning. Don’t worry, that is a good thing because as I have shared my heart with you, my heart has been flooded with memories of you that I thought were long forgotten. I will write more tomorrow!

Goodnight my dearest, with all my love,

Dad

Dear April

Every 15 minutes someone in the United States dies as the result of an alcohol related traffic collision. Today you died. How do I write the words to express in this letter what you meant to me and how much you will, yes you will be truly missed by everyone in our family! Our time together was short here on earth, but someday we will see each other again in Heaven and that gives me some comfort now…

I will miss your presence in my life first and foremost, your baby blue eyes, your beautiful smile, your funny witty sayings, and some of your occasional sarcastic remarks! I enjoyed being your mother and having you as my daughter. Being a single parent there were times that our mother daughter relationship was tested, which made it difficult for me to keep “The Parent Straight Face Look without smiling” and you knew that. Today the priceless memories of you are shadowed by the deep pain felt in my heart. A flood of emotions make it difficult to think straight.

I will never see you eat ice cream with a fork again… I will never hear you sing along with 100 of your “that’s my favorite song!” again… I will never see you multi tasking: texting on you your cell and talking on the phone at the same time again… I will never see you graduate from High School or College, get your driver license, see you walk down the isle to get married or hold your children in my arms.

The memories we shared I will treasure and I will remember. Your favorite children’s book quote says it all. “I love you fore ever, I love you always, and as long as I am living my baby you will be.” Goodbye my beautiful daughter. I love you and thank God that you were in my life.

Christopher, my sonshine.

Today you died and we didn’t get to stop you before you left this morning to give you a hug, tell you we love you and to have a good day.

Our busy schedules seem to pull us in different directions that we don’t get to see much of each other these days. Now you have died and we will never see you again.

I know we have said how proud we are of you and that you have become a fine son and talented young man but we haven’t told you that we are excited every day to have you in our life.

We haven’t told you that when you feel sad or happy we feel sad or happy, when you achieve we have achieved, if you fail we fail. Your accomplishments give us pride and a reason to brag. We know our parenting efforts have been successful and that we have done a good job teaching you and pointing you in the positive direction. Your successes are a reflection of your hard work, dedication and what you have overcome to achieve.

Your sister died in an alcohol related crash 3 years ago, April 18th 2006. Like you she was taken from this world before her time. Like you, a junior at Chugiak High School, like you with so much going for her. Your father and I thought then that would be the worst tragedy we would have to endure, we never thought we would have both our children die before us.

A new aspect of your life was just beginning as you were entering into adulthood and you had so many journeys ahead of you. We were not done watching you grow. Although we will never see you again, we can still see you achieving your goals and making your dreams come true….

You went to State with Chugiak Football. You are receiving your academic letter that you worked so diligently for. You are going to your Senior Prom, Graduating and going off to college to play ball and pursue your dreams of NFL, Forensics Science and Law Enforcement. You are getting married, starting a family and carrying on the Wood family name.

Your good character, outrageous sense of humor, goofiness, sensitivity, loving and daringness along with your “big hair” and magnetic smile will forever be remembered. WE LOVE YOU.

We will forever see you in our dreams, thoughts, memories….

We will see you in the hallway running and sliding in your socks but will not be able to tell you to STOP because you are not with us.
We will see you “horsing” around being rowdy but will not be able to tell you to STOP because you are not with us.

We will see and hear you playing your music but will not be able to tell you to turn it down or close your door because you are not with us.
We will see you staying up late, watching TV or playing X-Box but will not be able to tell you to STOP, go to bed, because you are not with us.

I will not be able to have you scare me and yell STOP it because you are not with me.

We will see you getting into the car but will not be able to tell you to STOP because WE were not WITH You and now you are no longer with us…..you are dead.

Today you died and we didn’t get to say…… Goodbye.

Love Mom & Dad.

Dear Alex,

Every fifteen minutes someone in the United States dies as a result of an alcohol related traffic collision. Today you died. I never had the chance to tell you…today my heart is broken, and I’m not sure if it will ever heal. Your death will send ripples of sadness through the family, your Grandmothers, Aunts, Uncles and cousins that have watched you grow up.

I was so happy the day you were born to have this bright eyed baby boy. You were always on the go and challenging us in everything you did. At a very young age you understood what it meant to live your life to the fullest and you did that as often as you could.

I recognized how thoughtful you were when your sister went to college. You made an effort to tell me you loved me and helped out where you could without too much fuss, and that meant a lot to me.

I will miss that glint in your eye and the smile on your face when you got one over on me. Your laugh was always infectious and your sense of humor always brightened my day.

Slowly as the days, weeks, and months pass I will find a way to move on, but there will always be reminders of you. Our walks out at the visitors center, camping at Carpenter Lake and the hundreds of songs that you loved to listen to will always be reminders of you.

Most importantly I want you to know how proud of you I am. I admire your commitment to your job, your respect of your family and the love you shared with others.

I am so sorry that we won’t be able to watch you mature into the wonderful man I know you would be, but I know that the short time that you spent on this earth you made the most of it and the people that have known you and loved you will always miss you.

I love you Alex, to the sun, the moon, the stars, and the farthest reaches of the universe and back, and there is nothing that will ever change that.

Go in peace my beautiful boy.
All my love forever,
Mom

My Beautiful Kayleigh Kakes,

I can’t believe I’m writing this letter, a goodbye letter. I never thought you would leave this earth before me. It’s not supposed to be like this – children aren’t to die before their parents – isn’t that the rule?

This world will not be the same without my Kayleigh. What you would have contributed! Who knows what your life would be like? Would you have come back to Alaska to teach High school? Would you have traveled Italy while learning Italian? Would you have coached softball? Would you have married? Would you have had children? I only wish I had the chance to know…

I honestly can’t imagine life without you. I know I will never be the same, forever changed without you here. I know we would have been the best friends even though I’m your mom. How I will miss our conversations, our laughter, your wit and sense of humor, your sarcasm, your goodness and your loyalty.

To not see my beautiful blue-eyed girl again is unbelievable. It’s the most painful thing in my life. I couldn’t wait for you to go to college- you were so excited! I wanted you to spread your wings and enjoy life. I wanted you to scuba dive! I couldn’t wait to see your successes in life. I wanted to see you and Shayne become friends…

So now I have to learn to go on without you in my life. How can I when I love you so much, with all of my heart? It’s broken now. I pray you are at peace. I hope you are laughing and hope you are safe and warm. I love you forever.

Love,

Mom

Shannon my baby girl, and you will always be my baby,

Every 15 minutes someone in the United States dies as the result of an alcohol related traffic collision. Today you died. I never had the chance to tell you... that even though I was devastated when I realized I was pregnant with you, when I saw you for the first time my heart melted and I knew just how blessed I was. You have been my blessing the whole of your life. You warmed my heart with your frequent and exuberant hugs. Your unconditional love and patience with me when I was going through some rough times is something I will always cherish. memories memories

I remember how scared I was when your brother took you out into the woods behind the house when you two and you fell and knocked out your front tooth. You were always self-conscious about the missing tooth. I remember you trying to get your siblings in trouble and succeeding too often. You even practiced crying in the bathroom mirror. You may not remember this but when you were seven and eight you would crawl into my bed at night and snuggle up and make the long nights full of sweet dreams. We would always pray for angels on the window. Another time I was completely frantic was when your brother, sixteen was bringing you home on the people mover bus, you were seven, and he forgot you on the bus. I could feel myself hyperventilating in my panic. I remember the way people looked with disbelief when I told them that my daughter gets herself up every morning and gets herself off to school. You were almost ten. Do you remember the year we hiked twin peaks together? It was so pretty up there. I still remember you winning that fishing trip for two and you and I took the train to Seward, just because. Man did you and Jim catch a lot of fish that day. I still laugh when you made up meaning for words that weren't words and creatively spelled things..lol.. I remember snow machining, boating and fishing with you. Shopping, eating walking sleeping and talking with you. Everyday of my life for the last almost eighteen years you have been an centrically part of everything. Every memory I have you are in, in some way, even when we were apart. So many memories and yet there are never enough memories.

Looking back we have had some good talks about trust and responsibility, and I trusted you. We had talked openly in our house about almost everything sex, drugs, alcohol and relationships nothing was really a secret. I have always been so proud of your forthrightness. You were honest when it hurt to be honest and took responsibility for the consequences of your actions. In many ways you were more mature than some adults I know. You would champion the underdog and take on the bully. When you had something you always shared. Even when you were little, you would take what little money you had at Christmas and make sure everyone got something, and not buy for yourself. Those gifts are the ones most remembered. Not what you bought but the fact that you bought something when you had nothing and other kids would have been buying candy. There are so many memories and yet there are never enough memories.
When something bad happened to you, it was like it happened to me too. Like the year we invited all your friends to your birthday party, but because I had just divorced your dad, their parents wouldn't let them come. I told you it didn't matter and that you were better off with out them and did my best to make it happy anyway. Inside I want to scream and stomp and call those parents and tell them exactly what I thought of them, but I didn’t because I didn't want you to learn the wrong way of handling things. In turn every time something wonderful happened to you, I felt like it happened to me too. I missed you so much when you went away on your week long field trip to Seward when you were 10, but I was also so excited for you, I couldn't wait for you to come home and tell me all about it. Same with the DC and the village trip too. You were so full of life and excitement over the adventure you were on. Yes, so many memories and yet never enough memories.

Thinking of that, I realize this missing you will never go away. I will keep waiting for you to come in the door and hug me like you always did, and call me Ma shja. Only you wont be coming in. This isn't a trip to Washington DC, the villages or to Seward, that will see you home and back with me, this is forever. I won't have any more memories with you. I won't get to see you graduate high school let alone go off to college. I won't be able to help plan your wedding. I won't be there when you have your baby and hold it in my arms. Right now I am confused and don't know how I will handle this hole you left. I know you are with Jesus, but I still wish you were here with me. Still making a memory because even though there are so many there can never be enough.

I love you Shae Rae and miss you horribly.

Dear Caitlin,

Every 15 minutes someone in the United States dies as the result of an alcohol related traffic collision. Today you died and the world is a darker place. I never had the chance to tell you how very blessed your mother; Duncan and I are to have you as a daughter and sister. We have been exceptionally blessed to be a very close, open family and thoroughly enjoyed being together and sharing all the little joys and pitfalls of life.
I have told you many of these things before, but the excruciating pain of losing you to this senseless act and knowing I won’t get to say them to you again makes me want to put it in writing.

No parent could hope to have had such a bright, funny, focused, kind and spiritual child. Your connectedness with God has been a guiding light in your path which showed in every way you lived your life. It comforts me more than all things to know you are with our Lord now and feel his incredible love and will want for nothing again. I am so proud of the way you doggedly rejected negative and unkind peer pressures and stuck by friends based on their heart and character. When Grandmaster Kim promoted you to black belt without the multiple pretests usually required, and then praised your technique and attitude as traditional and exemplary, I thought I would burst with pride. I have always been impressed with the love and compassion, friendship and mentoring you showed your brother when so many others would fight, argue and reject their younger siblings. The positive impact you have made on his life is immeasurable, and in your youthful wisdom, I think you know it.

I cherish the way we all joked with each other, puppy piled on the couch to watch movies as a family and the way we always say, “I love” you after a phone conversation. These simple things bring me enormous joy.

Your mother and I have endeavored to be good role models and share our knowledge and experiences with you to help you in your journey. However, in so many ways I look up to you and try to emulate your characteristics and actions. It may seem backward for the parent to look at their child as a role model, but I count this as yet another blessing I have had with you as my daughter.

Like you, I so looked forward to seeing you graduate from college, exploring your professional career, falling in love and marrying a nice young man, and starting a family. The joy in seeing you with children of your own would have been profound. I can think of no one who would make a better Mom. There are so many big and small experiences we should have shared as a family and as a father and daughter that have been taken from us. I will dream of them often and always.
I do not know how we will endure the emptiness and misery imposed by the selfish act of a drunken driver. It has caused such unending pain for so many. We will pray and cry, hug and lean on each other for strength, and we will always think of you . . . .

I love you so,

Dad

Every 15 Minutes

It's so good to be able to talk to people again! It wasn't even 24 hours of not being able to talk to anyone, but it seemed like an eternity. Especially last night and this morning! That Every 15 Minutes program was intense!! I didn't know how big it was until this morning when we went to the assembly! All sitting there with the pictures up front, the flowers, people behind us with candles, and watching the ROTC people walk by with the casket! Creepy! It was so weird! The beginning was really good, the music was depressing, but I broke down and just bawled once they told us to stand and go see our parents! I was like pushing my way through and like...yeah. I have never been so emotional in my whole life!!! My worst nightmare is something like that becoming a reality! I never want my parents to go through something like that ever again. That was truly life changing, and an experience I will never forget! The highlight of my four years at Chugiak High.

A little bit about my experience with Every 15 Minutes…

Dear mom and dad every 15 minutes someone is killed in alcohol related accident, today I died and I never got to tell you...

Man, this got to the heart of me. I had to write a letter to my parents starting off like that, it was one of the hardest things I have done. Every 15 minutes had such an impact on me and I will never ever put myself or others in danger ever, ever again. Going through a scenario of drunk driving, having 2 friends of mine "die" impacted me greatly. To see Sam Dubin, the intoxicated driver being taken off after not even realized what she had done, then seeing her in a holding cell in an orange jump suit before a judge and before the parents of the people she killed. It tore my heart out to see her get sentenced to 15 years, 5 years suspended. After all it was a mock trial but it hit me harder than I thought it would. It's a nightmare you never want to wake up to, because lives are lost, at the expense of the person who made that choice to turn the key.

My message to you all is not “don't drink;” but rather, please, please don't get in the car and drive somewhere even if you think your okay. I don't want you to take others’ lives or my life, for that fact. Please know that I say this in the most loving way - if you kill someone, it's something you live with for the rest of your life.

I couldn't get the pics to work on here but go check them out at this link: http://www.asdk12.org/schools/chugiak/pages/Every%2015%20Minutes%20at%20CHS/EFM%20Photos/index.htm
Dear Officer Shackelford,

Thought you could appreciate the photos I’m enclosing of the “allegedly” drunk driver who crashed his Corvette into our yard last night. We had just gone to bed at 10:30 last night when we heard the crash and ran to the front window to see where it was. Usually, cars end up in the area south of our house because they miss the turn going down the mountain (and usually in winter with ice...) We didn’t see anything in front, so Sarah and I decided to get in the Suburban with some blankets and such and drive a little further down the road to see if we could find it. I am a registered nurse and thought I could help in some way until paramedics got there if there were injuries. My husband had already started walking down the road along with a neighbor to look for it.

Our car is parked to the north side of the house in a cleared brushy area off of Skyline. When I got in the car and turned on the ignition, the lights shown right onto the upside down Corvette. I freaked at first, thinking there couldn’t be anyone alive in it, and not just Sarah, but my 6 and 13 year old kids were outside and going to see pieces of body possibly thrown from the car. As it turned out, the occupant was alive and still attached in his seatbelt. The driver side window glass wasn’t even broken, so I couldn’t get to him. I decided since he was talking and said he could feel his feet and wiggle them, the car seemed stable, and I didn’t smell any gas leaking, the initial assessment was he would be OK and I wouldn’t do anything except keep him calm until professional help arrived. The fire department showed up and broke the glass and pulled him out. The rest of the story you should probably get from the police report since it seemed evident to me he had been drinking. He kept saying “Please don’t call 911”, “Please don’t call the Police”. Ya right dude. You are hanging upside down in your car in my yard, what else am I going to do?

This really brought home the truth of the EFM program from last year to Sarah. And, with a much better ending for the occupant of the Corvette. At least this guy is probably only in jail and not in the morgue. He hit not only the GCI cable box, but broke out part of the guardrail, went airborne and sideswiped my husbands truck, landed on top of the camper shell and canoe stored in front of the truck, then pushed the snowplow blade about 50 feet. Amazing.

I was just out talking with the GCI repairmen – I guess the system still isn’t fixed. Anyway, one of the electricians is the father of another girl that participated in EFM last year. Don’t remember who he said she was, but she is a cheerleader. It almost seems serendipitous that two students who participated in EFM out of how many in Chugiak, were in the circle of this guys actions? I hope this isn’t overstepping my bounds, but wouldn’t you think it would be fitting for this dude if he in fact was drunk, to be required to participate in the next EFM program you do, not so much as punishment for him, but as community service? He could even bring his car, well, what is left of it.

Can you make suggestions like that to the DA, or who ever is involved in the processing of this individual if he is convicted? Or, can I? Don’t know how that whole part works. Either way, even though Sarah graduates this year, I have another child entering CHS next year, so you can count on us participating in the next EFM.

Thanks for your time,

Victoria Miltersen, parent of EFM 2006 participant
Reflections on Every 15 Minutes 2009
by Victoria Lomen

The Death (EFM 1)

The every 15 minutes preparations started about two months to a month and half before the simulation crash on the 21 of April 2009. There was a long interviewing process and lots of paper work. We were all required to have our parents write our obituaries. Two weeks before the accident we all found out our actual roles. I just so happened to be the driver of the victim's car and my injury was a punctured lung, I wasn't wearing my seat belt. Now on the day of the accident.......

7:30A.M. Everyone from the accident was in room 62 (Student Gov) and we were getting our makeup ready. Now during the course of the day the grim reaper would go around to class rooms and every 15 minutes would get a student (who went through the interview process as well) and the kid went to room 62 put a black shirt on and painted their face white. While they were gone the grim reaper would read off the obituary of the student.

My makeup included a blue face, because I was suffocating and a bruise on my chest. There were so many people in the room it was incredible. It seemed so busy and happy considering what was about to happen.

All of the victims in the drunk driving simulation were sent out to the cars with about 8 minutes to finish prepping and get bloodied. The makeup artist poured four gallons of fake blood all over the inside and outside of the car. With me in the car, in the passenger seat was Chris, behind him was Shannon and next to her was Kayla, and on the hood of my car, her head through the windshield was Amanda. In the drunk driving car was Molly and Vanessa. On Amanda's head the makeup guy put fake brains and blood. Now someone in the car had cracked a joke and we were all laughing when students started to come out. We were supposed to wait until Colt came around talking on his cell phone (he was the one who "reported" the accident). The problem was we never saw Colt. So on the count of three, it all began.....1.....2......3....

Everyone in the car started up. I some how ended up being the loudest (so I have heard) the thing is I was using less than half my air capacity. But I was yelling that I couldn't breath and of course breathing heavy. Chris was calling for someone to help me. I think Kayla had once or twice but I don't really remember being in the car. It's amazing how into character one really gets. I don't remember the grim reaper coming around the car. I just remember my hands tingling and not being able to feel them and my entire body shaking because it was so cold and "I couldn't breath." I just remember looking at the ceiling of the car and out the window once the police showed up and started talking to me. Any time I moved I yelled. When I was in that car I was there, it became so real. I felt the pain when I moved or breathed. I was in pain, I was dying, and this was the end. That's what was going through my mind. Well, I also had 'how can I make this real for them?' going through my thoughts.

When the cops showed up one of them came to me, of course they were asking me where it hurt while I was stating I couldn't breathe. They asked me my name, what happened, if we had been drinking, but I couldn't speak, I couldn't breathe, I was dying. They told me it was going to be alright and that I shouldn't move. Thing is when ever a cop or fireman walked by my door to look in at me I sort of put my head out the window, yelling as I did so, and asking them to help me.

They had to use the Jaws of Life to get me out. I just remember making a lot of noise when they did this because pieces were flying every where and I wanted to put my hands up to protect my face. At some point when they were trying to get Chris out (who had a bone through his arm) they had him try to put his legs out but he kept pushing me with his feet. When the door was finally off they had someone come up behind me and place there hands around my head to keep it from moving, then they put a neck brace on, it made it difficult to breathe. Except the person holding my head was doing a poor job, it kept moving. Then someone and a bunch of other fire fighters came up and started discussing how they were going to get me out. Then they had a stretcher and began to put it under me. Someone grabbed my belt loops and slid me onto the stretcher. The entire time I yelled and cried out with every bit of movement. Finally they got the stretcher under me and began to slide me out. They had to move my head when I was getting through the door. I was finally slid completely onto the stretcher. They strapped me down, very tightly. My hand dangled off the side for a long time before anyone put it back up. At some point someone put an oxygen tube into my mouth, (the ones that are hand pumped). They put it to far back into my mouth and actually pumped air, and then I was really gagging and really couldn't breathe. I tired to move the tube to the side of my mouth. I went silent. I was dying. I was now perceived to be passed out. I closed my eyes (I think) and I was put onto the ambulance with Vanessa.

Once on the ambulance we were told we could get out of character. Then all of a sudden a photographer and a UAA student who was getting live footage got into the ambulance. We were back in character. It was nice because all of a sudden I saw a face I recognized, Hailee; she pumped my oxygen for the duration of my life. This time the air tube was not far in my mouth and the air was hardly pumped into it (which really would have been my lungs). The youngest male fire fighter named Eric (I think) taped an IV to my arm (no needle) and started taking my vitals. I was given a heat pack, which spent the majority of its time on the floor. Since there were so many people on the ambulance Eric had to keep stepping over me and at one point he stepped on my IV. We did get a little down time in the ambulance where we got to kind of talk. I tired to explain, through all my spit and tubes, what had “actually” happened and how Amanda died. Amanda, Molly and Vennessa had been drinking. Amanda, obviously intoxicated, decided to surf in the back of Molly’s truck. When Molly hit “my” little white car Amanda flew and hit my windshield. I almost fell asleep on the way to the hospital even though I was so uncomfortable. We ended up missing the turn to providence and taking the long way.

When we arrived at the hospital everything seemed very somber. It was a deathly silence. Where at school it seemed to be more of a chaotic silence, if that makes any sense? I was dying, and this was the end. They wheeled me into the emergency room. They cut off my clothes (except for my under wear and bra), they stuck heart monitors on me and I was dying. This was the end. I Flat Lined. I can hear the words so clearly in my head. I could hear them speaking, “She’s not going to make it, get her parents.” More CPR another pulse check, nothing, one more time. “She didn’t make it.” My world stopped. I was dead.

“Time of death, 10:45 AM.”

After Death Retreat (EFM 2)

I was laying there dead in the hospital. My parents were leaning over me hugging me and kissing me. I had to lay still, well, limp. I had to completely slow my breathing. I was dead. I couldn’t cry, I couldn’t laugh, I couldn’t show any sort of emotion. I was lifeless. When my parents finally left the room I had a hard time sitting up. I don’t know how long I had been lying on that plastic stretcher, but it wasn’t fun. My mom had forgotten to give the nurse my clothes so my mom came back in with them, my family ended up seeing me alive, sadly. I was finally able to get dressed. The thing was they kept opening and closing the curtain, so I really didn’t get much privacy. I was left a victim to the eyes of the other victim’s parents. After getting dressed I went a cross the hall to attempt to wash the blue make up off my face, the fake bruise on my chest, and the fake blood that had some how managed to get literally every where, but my attempt failed so I left it on. As I was cleaning up Chris went into the room, not really yelling but making some noises. His parents and sister went into the room and cried over him. Then some how, the crash and everything was over. Chris got dressed and went to clean up. The rest of us walked around the little hospital pod that we had been rushed to. Patients were looking around at us like we were crazy. Then again, our wounds looked real, and to see a wounded person with blood dripping down their face and skipping to the bathroom, would make us appear crazy. Some of the “victims” were able to share their experience with the patients.
We then headed down to the food court for about an hour and a half as we waited for our ride back to school. All of us sat at the table sharing our experiences with one another. We also looked at some of the pictures that Scott took (I believe that was his name?). Chris’s sister also joined us for lunch. When we finally got back to school it was nearly time for us to head to the retreat. When I walked into RM 62 I saw Amanda sitting on the ground all bloodied and battered looking.

It was amazing to be back in RM 62. The memories of that morning flooded my brain again. I couldn’t believe it was actually all over. I was shocked at how fast everything went. How natural everything flowed. We waited in RM 62 for a while. All of the walking dead slowly started filtering in. Their white faces and black shirts a reminder of the people we lose every 15 minutes due to a drunk driver.

We all gathered our things and headed to the bus where we piled in and headed off to our retreat sight. When we arrived at the church we had about an hour and half to shower, eat some food and share our stories with the walking dead and vise versa. It was great to hear every one’s stories. We all had something so unique to bring to the table. Different stories of pain and frustration, excitement and nervousness. It was incredible the amount of zealously flying about the room. We were all so happy at how we did, we were so excited. It was a really tough experience but it was so amazing. We may have played a role in saving someone’s life.

Now during the course of the night we did team building activities, we had two speakers, and we wrote letters to our parents. The speakers were Mike and Paul. Mike was an officer who had been chasing a drunk diver and ended up being a victim pinned in his car burning alive. Paul on the other hand was a convicted drunk driver. I found I most related to Paul at the time. He talked about how when he was in jail it was like he was dead because the world continued on around him but he was stuck in the same place day after day. This was the point that my first tear slipped past my eye lid. I realized that this could be real. All of a sudden I did feel dead. I was at the retreat, my world was stopped while everyone else continued along living their life. I was dead to everyone. I no longer existed. It was over for me.

When we wrote our letters to our parents we all were scattered everywhere in the gym and outside. Everyone had their heads bent over their blue papers scribbling wildly or staring thoughtfully into space. There were huddles of victims in sleeping bags circling one center point. There were students in the corners. Some people crying, some concerned. It was an amazing sight to see my peers really taking to heart what had happened.
I knew just about everyone, or at least their face. But now I feel we all share a common bond connecting us all in a new way. We see each other and smile kindly. A warm hello may casually be spoken in passing. But we all know and feel the connection that brought us together for those 24 hours. We shared emotions and feelings with each other that united us in friendship. We know in our hearts the truth of the connection. We may only ever be acquaintances but we will always know the truth of what brought us together that single April day.

My Memorial (EFM 3)

The next morning came bright and early. I had tons of energy as I ran to the shower to beat the rush, which I successfully did. While I was in the shower I managed to find a heart monitor still stuck to me that I had missed taking off the day before. The air was filled with anxiety. We all were still a bit emotionally groggy from the previous day’s events. We hadn’t had a chance to release our emotions. You could tell that everyone was on edge and not ready for what was about to come. We were fortunate enough to get coffee and of course food.

As we were heading to the door Officer Shackelford stopped us and handed out dog tags from MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving) that said Choose Courage in white on solid black. They added to the emotions and nervousness of the coming events. We all filed on to the bus and got ready to head back to RM 62.

Again walking in the room all the memories came back. There had been so many people and cameras all bustling around the room. People flying every where trying to get ready. And now there we were, the room was still and quiet.

We all pulled out our sleeping bags and lay out to relax until the memorial service. A little group of people sat and talked while the rest of us curled up and tried to get some extra sleep. Finally the bell rang for class to start. We all were woken up and sent out side for a picture by the head stones.

No one had really had the chance to express their emotions, we could feel the anticipation. After the picture we went into the multipurpose room and sat in the center of the room waiting for the students to arrive. Someone from a drunken driving association came up and talked to us about a drunk driving walk-run that we could participate in, or write a story for. We were all pretty much silent as we sat and waited. A box of tissues went around all 19 of us victims and we all took some. In front of us on the right hand side was a table of every one’s picture and a single candle for each of us. Every one’s letters placed neatly under their pictures.
The bell finally rang. “Teacher please take your student to the gym for the assembly.” We didn’t look at any students, we were still dead. Our life’s taken by a simple mistake that we or someone else made. It was so hard not to look at the students and their expressions. But we sat there, barely even talking to each other, waiting for everything to start.

The ROTC students came out and presented the colors and the National Anthem played. Everyone sat down.

All of a sudden out of the corner of my eye I saw a brown box. My heart stopped as my head realized what it was. The coffin rounded the corner before I had the chance to prepare myself for the emotions that were about to go flooding through me. The tears began pouring from my eyes. My heart began to ache and every emotion that had been held in from the previous day released itself into my heart. Everything came back. My heart and soul were torn to pieces as I realized everything that had actually happened. I could feel the eyes of hundreds of students watching us 19 victims and the coffin as it finished the walk from the back of the gym to the front where us victims could see it. The coffin, our constant reminder of the lose we suffered, the “death” of 19 students.

After the ROTC students placed the coffin in position we watched a five minute movie on the previous day’s events. When I saw myself on the screen I felt so distant from the world. As I watched myself being removed from “my” little white car screaming, my eye’s couldn’t believe what they were seeing. Then when my dad showed up, speaking at the court hearing, my heart stopped. I felt more emotions about to explode. I watched as one of my friends was sentence and handcuffed. I watched her walk out of the room, her life slipping between her fingers. I watched as one of my peers lay dead on the hood of my car. Then I saw me, dead. They tried CPR but it didn’t work. I was dead.

When the movie ended April and Vennessa read the letter to their parents. More emotions came flooding when Vennessa read her letter. During the time we had the chance to write them I got to hear some of the meanings behind Vennessa’s letter and her favorite memories. Then Molly’s mom and Madison’s mom got up and read their letters to their daughters.

The entire time I could feel the students gaze heavy upon all of us. My parent’s were sitting right behind me, but I couldn’t look at them. I was numb and distraught. After the letters were read Mike got up and told us the story he told us the night before. After he was finished Officer Shackelford stood up and spoke. Her words were powerful, and sharp on the heart. My tears became sobs as I heard her speak what we had demonstrated. Then she said the words we all had been waiting to hear….

“Kids, go find your parents.”
I think I might have been the first one up. I saw my dad’s eyes meet mine and I didn’t break the gaze. I practically sprinted into his arms. Any emotion that hadn’t already had been set free was now gushing down my face. I have never cried so hard and deep in my life. I hugged my dad and cried and cried and cried. Every student watching the reunion. I have heard that most students were in tears by this point. They were crying with us, and they were mourning the loss of their loved ones and friends who had been killed in a drunk driving collision.

After hugging my dad I hugged my mom and cried in her arms as she cried in mine, then my step-mom, then my brother, and then my step brother. In everyone’s ear I whispered I loved them. Then I stood there sharing some of the stories and experiences I had had. I talked about the guy stepping on my IV and playing dead at the hospital and about the retreat. My heart was broken and the tears wouldn’t stop.

When my parents left I grabbed my picture, candle, and letters and headed for my safe haven RM 62. Before I made it there I was interviewed by some of the students from UAA who had filmed the entire event. With every question she asked more tears would fall, with every answer I gave, another tear was shed. When I had finally made it to RM 62 most students had taken their stuff and went home. I sat in the room by myself and read the letters that my parents gave to me. I cried so hard. My heart was torn out of my chest and thrown across the room. I was hurting on the inside. I attempted classes but by 6th hour I was back in my safe haven in a sleeping bag talking with my best friend. RM 62, it was more painful than a deathly silence. It was a piercing roar of memories from all the events that had passed. I was silent. My soul was aching for understanding. My life had been changed, forever.

Down the Path (EFM 4)

Every 15 Minutes someone in the United States dies in a drunk driving related traffic collision. Those 96 people die because of a simple mistake that someone made. Tomorrow is April 30, my 17th birthday and as I sit here writing this my mom is telling me about the days leading up to my birth and the day of. She told me how one day when she turned on the blow dryer I jumped and she was so excited. I realize that life is not celebrated often enough. Birthdays come around and go around. Many times we forget our friend’s and our family’s special day, they day they were born. Life can be taken from a person’s hands so quickly, every day should be celebrated that we have life.

When I hear sirens, I wonder for who they could be. The sound rings loud in my ear as a remembrance of the day I died. They have a new meaning to me; the sound means that someone’s life could be on the line. That sound was what came to my aide. It brings back the memories of sitting in the car and hearing sirens finally reach us. The sound of sirens, it’s amazing how different they sound to me now. I was sitting in art class one morning and I heard sirens flash passed our school on the highway, making the statement that someone was in need. It took everything not to cry. Every bone in my body was screaming out to let the emotions go. I wouldn’t let the tears from my eyes.

I’ve been thinking about the fact that every day 96 people die just because of drunk driving. I wonder who it could be next, my mom, or best friend, my brother or me. It’s scary to think about that everything I went through could become real. Only I wouldn’t hear the sirens or my time of death, I wouldn’t feel the love of my family; I would be gone for ever.

For a couple days after the crash I continued to feel the physical pain that went along with my acting. My chest hurt from the CPR, my breathing was irregular because of all the shallow quick irregular breaths I took while acting and my throat hurt from yelling and from the cold air raking across it as I tried to breathe. It was my reminder that it was real. I sit here though, writing this, and everything seems as though it was from a different life. It seems as though none of it happened. As soon as I wrote everything down my brain let go of it and I believe many of my emotions with it, but then again I still burst out into tears randomly. Some days I hold my emotions in and wait until I’m in the safety of my room before I burst into tears. My life has been changed.

It’s so difficult not to think about what the future really holds and where life may truly take me. I wonder what God has planned for me next. I don’t know where to go from here. Whether life has shown me a new path or just given me a choice, I do not know. I had the chance to show my peers the consequences of one stupid mistake. I may have gotten to play the part in saving a life, I will never know, but I can pray I did.

After the memorial service one week ago, April 22, 2009, I found my best friend at her locker. When I went up to her and gave her a big hug we both started crying. She said a couple of simple words that put everything into perspective for me. She said the words that made the experience even more real.

“I just went to my best friend’s funeral.”

It made me realize the true consequences that one stupid mistake could cause. I love my friends and family so much, and I don’t say it enough. I have made the mistake in my life of wasting time not loving my family and choosing to seclude myself from the world. I spent that majority of my freshman and sophomore year fighting my parents and disliking my siblings. I didn’t care about anything. I now see that a person really shouldn’t waste time but embrace every moment they are given.
I’m so glad that I am still alive.

Two weeks ago to the day I was in a simulation drunk driving car collision. It has been two weeks and my emotions are still on fire. As I walked out of the school today holding my red flower, which had been on the fence for a week after the crash symbolizing the death of 19 students, I felt the emotions rising inside me again. It has been two weeks and I am still able to feel all the emotional grief that filled me on those two tragic days.

I still walk by RM 62 and the memories and emotions come to me and it takes everything not to cry. When we go on the off ramp to the school I try not to look into the teachers parking lot where the accident took place; the emotions still rise up in me as if it had only happened yesterday.

Moments ago I watched the movie that they showed at the memorial service. I now cannot stop the flood of tears rushing down my face. I didn’t realize how badly I would feel. My emotions are real and my pains are forever. I will never forget the emotions tide to this event. My heart will ever be in fear of a future of this kind.

Today the Every 15 Minutes volunteers and participants had a BBQ as a celebration of life. We reminisced and accepted awards of participation. We shared our inside jokes and talked about how our lives and our friends lives have been changed forever. I nearly broke down when I heard My Memorial read out loud. My heart stopped and my world froze. The memories came back and once again I was nearly in tears. I didn’t realize how I would be ever so changed by these events.

My friends and I say we love each other more often now. I know that when I spend time with friends and family everything seems to have more meaning. Every moment I try to cherish with every fiber of my being.

I believe I lost a part of my self in that crash. I lost a part of my heart, or maybe it’s that I gained something. I gained a new emotion. Death seems more real to me and life has a new meaning. I try to love life more; I try to remember when my parents are getting on my nerves that this could be the last time I ever find them annoying. I don’t want my last words to my family to be something that I would regret. I find I appreciate so much more of the little silly things my family does, the corky things that I used to find so annoying.

My heart is so raw from the pain I’m not sure that it will ever heal. The tears could be a good thing though. My plan is to reach out. I do pray that my emotions will remain in tact and that I will be able to share the experience with others and let them see the true emotions. I wish that everyone in life could go through something like the simulation car crash.
My emotions in my writings are real. They are not forced or made up. My life has forever been changed. I want people to know about the consequences of their mistakes. I want people to see how emotional a person can be with just a simulation crash, and have them really think about how it would be if it had been real. It’s been two weeks and I feel as though my life has not yet decided where it’s going or what it’s going to do with all this new emotional information. I thought I had my emotions under control but now the tears flow again.

I do plan on returning for the next and every other Every 15 Minutes at Chugiak High School. I want kids to know the power of this experience; I want to be there to support future generations in good choices. I want to reach out to the community and remind people of all the people that are affected in a drunk driving crash. It’s not just the victims but their family and friends, and even further extending to friend’s friends.

My life has been changed forever and I want people to know why. I can’t just go through something this incredible and emotional and not share it with others. How could I not tell our community how I, a teenager at Chugiak High School, feel about our states drunk driving? I want to reach out. This is not the end; I know I can make a difference in this world even if it’s only one person at a time.

My life has been changed forever.

Every fifteen minutes someone is killed in a drunken driving collision. Every fifteen minutes a family member gets a phone call they would never look forward to. And every fifteen minutes, thousands of lives are affected by one person’s poor decision making.

On April 21\textsuperscript{st}, 2009, I was able to experience the effects of a drunken driving collision from a very different viewpoint than most students would ever have. On that day, I shed my identity as a Chugiak High School senior and donned the turnouts of a first responder as a member of the Chugiak Volunteer Fire Department. As we approached the crash scene at Chugiak High School in the second command vehicle, my emotions were racing uncontrollably through my body. I had no clue who the victims of the collision might be and no idea the extent of their injuries. All I knew was that I needed to get into the crash scene and help pull victims to safety. I guess you could say the “rescue instinct” kicked in because that’s all I had done for nearly five months prior at the King Career Center. Every day we repeated the mock rescue of someone from a car or laying flat on the floor. Through the course of my rescue training, I had learned how to handle many scenarios, but of all of them, this one was the most real.

Transporting the patients via ambulance to the hospital gave me a few minutes to cool down and re-group mentally, emotionally, and physically. I was also relieved that we had finally gotten away from the Grim Reaper, a formidable wraith hovering over the crash scene. I tended the patient under my care, with the guidance of the medics on our rig. I obtained their vitals, documented them, and began to radio patient information to Providence Hospital. The hospital staff had pre-arranged rooms for our patients so when we arrived we knew exactly where to take them. After we delivered the patients to the emergency room, we packed up our rig, replaced the linens, and headed home to Chugiak, just like we had done a dozen times before; but this time it was different. I was different.

During the ride home I became the drowsiest I had ever been. Not only was I already tired from working successively late nights at my job, but I had just experienced the adrenaline dump of a lifetime. Loads of anxiety drained from my body into my feet as a poison leeching through my soul. I could only put my head down and think about all that had just happened; the families that were affected by this collision, the students and teachers, and what all of the first responders must be thinking and feeling. If this had been real, what would have happened? To this day, several weeks later, I still think about it. But it was just a simulation! Had two CHS students really died in that crash, it would have haunted me even more. I can only pray every night that this doesn’t happen for real.
The sad reality is that it probably will. Somewhere. Because every 15 minutes someone dies in an alcohol related collision in the United States.

People often make choices that are hard to understand. We, as the human race, have become adept at coping with disaster. Some are better at it than others, but, in general, we deal with difficult circumstances fairly well. My goal, as well as the goal of everyone involved in Every Fifteen Minutes, is to avoid a real alcohol related collision, at all costs. If it means not having “as much fun” because you are sober, then so be it. A person could almost fear alcohol after seeing such a realistic demonstration of the destruction it leaves behind.

Every Fifteen Minutes was a life changing event for those who experienced it. Those who listened and watched quietly understand the genuine heartache the parents and volunteers go through. The person in the firefighters’ uniform, pulling bloody victims out of a car and the officer contacting parents to tell them their son or daughter had been killed or severely injured in an alcohol related collision, are real people with real emotions. They do this on a daily basis. So the next time you see one of them, listen when they give you a little piece of advice regarding vehicle safety. They usually know from experience.

“I was a medic on the every 15 minutes incident. With this experience I was deeply moved when I had to take a girl who I have know for years and watch her go limp as she "died". I actually started to cry thinking about how this would have really of affected me if it had been real. Thank the lord it wasn’t. As a medic I see a lot of accidents but I haven't had many that involved people I know. I believe that this was a good experience. It is as close as people can get to the real thing and it actually has a major impact. There was not one person who watched that didn't go home and think about how that could be them in real life. There are so many incidents with teens drinking and driving that it affects everybody. As a medic it affects me. Because if they crash I am the one who gets to go and help clean up the mess they made that could have been prevented.”

“I sent out a message on Facebook asking people to write about their experience with every 15 minutes......they were in 2006 EFM....I thought it would be cool for you to hear about how it does make a difference. All the work that you put into every 15 minutes really does make a difference.”

“Every 15 Minutes was a great experience for me. I learned a lot and to this day I don’t drink, not just because I’m still underage, but because of the sad stories we were told during our experience and what you hear on the news every so often. When I finally do turn 21, I know I will be responsible enough to keep from getting trashed every night. I will be able to enjoy a reasonable amount of alcohol and still be able to act myself. Now I’m in college and every time I hear a siren going to a dorm on campus I know it’s a big possibility its for someone who drank too much or overdosed on something. it reminds me of my time in E15M and why I don’t drink.

Thank you to Wendy Shackelford for making it a great and memorable program as well as all of the students that participated my junior year and this last time too!”

~Danielle Maynard, 2006 Walking Dead

“Every 15 Minutes was one of the highlights of my time in high school. You know those moments when you really feel like you meant something and that you’d made a difference? That was one of them.

Three years later I still remember almost every minute of those days. I remember being excited to be called out of class, putting on the black T-shirt and white makeup and laughing with friends until we walked into the hallway. After that, I was silent. I remember being surprised how many other students were taking the event seriously, and not just the ones who were part of it.

Class and walking around school silent were one thing. Seeing the crash site that afternoon, despite the fact that I knew what it was going to be like, was awful. I can still see my friend Eric getting out of one of the crashed cars and spitting blood, and I still fight the urge to be sick when I think of it. Even now, sitting in my dorm room on the other side of the country, I can feel the chill in the air when the paramedics pulled Matt out of the car with a screwdriver through his back. I can see it all as if I'm still sitting in that parking lot crying.
No matter how real it may have seemed then, to me the threat of drunk driving accidents was never real in high school. Then I got to college and the "real world" and it all made a much bigger difference. Here, I know people who have been in drunk driving-related accidents, and it's scary to think how they could end. Just last month after a night of drinking, two boys flipped their car off the road into the river fifteen feet below. It's amazing they survived, but at the same time, it's a wake-up call to so many people. The next day I started making sure that my friends all knew that I would rather be woken up in the middle of the night than have them drive drunk. I think they've started abusing the privilege, but I'd rather be pulled out of bed than have to worry about the alternative. Other than trying to prevent accidents like the one we simulated, the thing I took the most from Every 15 Minutes was the sense of community. Our accident wasn't just two groups of teenagers, it was their friends and family and the entire town who was hurt by it. It wasn't only the parents of the students involved who cried at the ceremony, it was the entire school and everyone in the community who had come to show their support for what we had done. That is the one thing that is exactly the same in the "real world" as it was in our small simulation. When one or two people act irresponsibly and are injured or even killed, their entire communities are hurt, not just themselves.

I think Frederick Buechner was right when he said "The life I touch for good or ill will touch another life, and that in turn another, until who knows where the trembling stops or in what far place my touch will be felt." We never know what our actions may lead to, which in the case of Every 15 Minutes is a great thing. During the car crash and memorial services, we may be only teenagers doing school activities, but beyond that, who knows how many people have been helped or even saved by the work that we did for those two days in 2006. In the end, that's what it's all about. If even one person in the crowd those days chose not to drink and drive, it was a success. And we all leave with the feeling that we did mean something, and we DID make a difference, which isn't a bad feeling to have."

DUI drama planned for teens
Police need help from parents to pull off 'Every 15 Minutes' docu-drama at CHS next spring

By AMY M. ARMSTRONG
For the Alaska Star

A handful of parents, teachers and students are lending their support to Anchorage Police Department school resource officers stationed at Chugiak High School who are planning a massive in-house drama for next spring highlighting the impact of drunken driving.

The plans are part of the annual Red Ribbon Week events at public schools this week, focusing on the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse,

"We need a lot of community support to make this very worthwhile project a reality for next spring," said Wendi Shackelford, an APD school resource officer at the high school. "This can have an incredible impact on the students."

She invites interested members of the public to a planning meeting tonight at 7 p.m. at the school in Room 102 to learn more about how they can get involved in the school's spring staging of the drama, "Every 15 Minutes."

Based out of Lehigh Valley, Pa., the National Every 15 Minutes Organization uses a program that focuses on a 1980s statistic indicating that someone dies every 15 minutes due to an alcohol-related automobile collision.

That statistic has since become one fatality per 30 minutes. But law enforcement officials such as Shackelford and her partner, Rob Lund, say that isn't good enough.

"We need to raise awareness," Shackelford said. "Particularly with our high school students."

That in part is why Kathleen Vik, the consumer and family sciences teacher at CHS who also serves as adviser for the Family, Career and Community Leaders of America club, has gotten involved.
"A year ago, I witnessed a 19-year-old Chugiak grad killed in an car collision after she had consumed substances and got behind a wheel," Vik said. "This only emphasized a need to push for a program that would be more effective in impacting the thoughts teens have when connecting to alcohol and their activities."

That need is why she and Officer Shackelford are investing a great deal of personal time over this fall and winter to make the program a reality at Chugiak High.

The program is aimed to be an emotional, hard-hitting portrayal of the aftermath of a fatal car crash, Shackelford said.

It begins with an outdoor assembly where students witness what happens right after two cars - one driven by a "drunk" driver - collide.

Real-time response by emergency personnel, including fire, paramedic and representatives from the coroner's office is depicted as students look on. Victims are freed from crushed automobiles, emergency personnel prepare to transport the injured and others are declared dead, much like what could be happening at a real crash.

Students watch as the designated student drunk driver goes through a variety of sobriety field tests and is arrested.

Once the assembly is completed and students return to their classrooms, a costumed Grim Reaper begins visiting the classrooms every 15 minutes and taking a victim.

"As each selected student is taken, police officers will be reading their obituary," Shackelford explained. "The student then become part of the "living dead" and will finish up their school day, but isn't allowed to interact with the other students for the rest of the day."

To drive the point home even further, the selected students don't go home that night. Instead, they go to an overnight retreat, according to the organization's national Web site, to simulate final separation such as death. The next school day, they are part of a wrap-up school-wide assembly.

The purpose is to give students a quick but safe glimpse into what life would be like if the student were killed in a real drunk driving accident.

Sure, it will be graphic. Shackelford plans to use whatever costuming she needs to depict a realistic scene. That probably includes fake blood.
But, as she points out, that's what officers and emergency responders see on a regular basis when responding to a crash.

Why not let the kids see it too, she said.

According to the national organization, the drama is making a difference.

The drama was presented at more than 75 high schools nationwide last school year.

Shackelford is excited about its debut performance at CHS next spring.

She hopes students will get the point that driving under the influence of alcohol is deadly.

She also hopes that the interaction by local emergency response personnel, police officers, paramedics, fire department and coroner's office officials throughout the two-day event will change the way students view professionals in those career fields.

"This is a powerful program that should help students see the members of their own emergency response community in a different light," Shackelford said. "They are no longer just cops, doctors, paramedics or firefighters, but instead they become mentors and regular human beings who care about the youth in our community and the choices they make."

Grim reality of driving drunk coming to CHS

By MARY M. RALL
Alaska Star

The Grim Reaper will walk the halls of Chugiak High April 18 and 19, bringing the brutal reality of the dangers of drinking and driving with him through the Every 15 Minutes awareness program.

Chugiak High will be the first school in the Anchorage School District to offer the program, designed to instill teenagers with the reality that someone in the United States dies from an alcohol related traffic collision every 15 minutes, said Anchorage Police Department school resource officer Wendi Shackelford.

Kathy Vik, the family and consumer sciences teacher at Chugiak High who originally pushed for the Every 15 Minutes program to be used at the school, said alcohol related traffic collisions now occur closer to every 20 to 22 minutes nationally, but school organizers wanted to stay true to the program's original format.

Shackelford said the program will present students with the consequences of drinking and driving by having a volunteer dressed as the Grim Reaper pull a different teenager from class every 15 minutes throughout the day April 18 creating a host of "walking dead" to illustrate the point.

The students will also see what it would mean to be involved in an alcohol related traffic collision through a staged but realistic crash site complete with students portraying injured and dead crash victims, she said.

"There're going to see as close as we can get to a real crash with kids that they know, real police, real fire response, real extrication, a real helicopter transporting someone because in real life, you don't usually get to see those things," Shackelford said.
Pat Wilson, a Chugiak High math teacher, is in charge of organizing the site. She said the collision would be graphic to allow students who are often desensitized to violence to witness reality.

"They see it on TV all the time and it becomes unreal. It's just something a little bit closer helping to prevent something like that," she said. "We want to make it authentic looking and put the 'germ' in there, especially around the end of school time and with the weather getting nicer."

Shackelford said the "walking dead" and "crash victims" won't go home following the school day, but will attend a retreat at an undisclosed location to process the day's events and participate in team building activities.

Each student will be asked to write a letter home to parents beginning "Dear Mom and Dad, every 15 minutes someone in the United States dies from an alcohol related traffic collision, and today I died. I never had the chance to tell you..." Shackelford said the letters would help the students understand and process the genuine consequences of drinking and driving.

"It's another way to educate kids in lifestyle choices. I think they expect adults to tell them, 'Don't do this. It's not safe,' " Shackelford said. "It gives them an opportunity to see what that might be like without the reality of it because reality is a hard teacher."

The "walking dead" and "crash victims" will return to school April 19 to witness their own memorial service with the rest of the student body and to hear the obituaries their parents wrote for them following their "deaths," Shackelford said.

Chugiak High junior Brittney Bruce, 16, has witnessed the Every 15 Minutes program as an eighth and ninth grader at schools she attended in Cleburne, Texas. She said seeing the collision and the memorial service had a lasting impact on her.

"It makes you think. It turns on that little button in your head and says, 'Hey, that's wrong.' It really makes you evaluate a lot of the choices that you've made in the past and really helps on making choices in the future and not doing the same mistakes over again," Bruce said. "It was a real shocker to see how real it was. In the memorial service afterward, that's when you're like, 'Wow, they're really gone.' "

Shackelford said the two-day program will be a success if it reaches just one student in the same way.
"If we change somebody's mind from either getting behind the wheel of a car and drinking or getting in as a passenger with someone who has been, that's a positive thing," she said. "We hope it starts a chain reaction of prevention."

Shackelford said the reality of the event and preparations would be made possible from a host of volunteers from the student body, parents, school administrators, teachers and counselors, the Chugiak Volunteer Fire Department, Anchorage police, State Troopers and the Air National Guard.

She said the sheer volume of volunteers demonstrates the importance of the program and the value the volunteers place on the lives of the students.

"They care about kids, and they want them to make healthy choices and they see this as a positive prevention measure," she said. "That's what our goal is, to make the kids think about it and to try to effect change."

Students get crash course on DUI woes

By MARY M. RALL
Alaska Star

The reality of driving while intoxicated and its potential consequences were illustrated for Chugiak High School students Tuesday and Wednesday through the national Every 15 Minutes awareness program that began with a mock crash scenario.

About 100 officials and volunteers worked behind the scenes for almost two years preparing for the drill, a first in Alaska, said Anchorage Police Department school resource officer Wendi Shackelford.

The crash scenario incorporated several emergency responders and eight student volunteers who acted out what occurs at the scene of a drunk driving accident, said Pat Wilson, a Chugiak High math teacher in charge of organizing the site.

"The visual picture is what I'm hoping they carry away from this so that when they're at a party, when they're at prom, they just stop for a second and think who should be driving and who shouldn't be," Wilson said.
She said organizers sought to create an indelibly realistic experience for the 1,500 students witnessing the accident. The scenario showed the immediate aftermath of an impact between two cars, including eight bloodied and battered crash victims, two of whom "perished" on impact.

Brian Webb, the regional Emergency Medical Services training coordinator for the Southern Region EMS Council in Anchorage, organized the reality of the victims' injuries. He said he ensured that everything from the minor scrapes of the driver to the horrific facial injuries, multiple lacerations and fractures of the other victims created out of latex, makeup and fake blood were as accurate as possible.

"Every one of the injuries that we have here is consistent with their position in the car and the type of head-on collision that both cars sustained," Webb said, adding that he was trying to create a sense of "shock and awe" for the onlookers.

"Part of Every 15 Minutes is being able to stun the kids initially and have them see the injuries, think about the injuries, think about what happens if they drive drunk," Webb said.

Emergency responders from the Anchorage Police Department, Chugiak Volunteer Fire Department and the Alaska National Guard responded to the crash as if it were a genuine accident scene.

CVFD assistant fire chief Virginia McMichael said the crash scene and the emergency response was very accurate.
"It's very realistic," she said, adding that it remained true to the tragedy that can occur for young drivers who make poor decisions. "It's not the first time we responded to incidents involving teenagers and alcohol. These kids are the same age as my kids. They're friends of my children."

Wilson said the experience for the crash victims didn't end with being extricated from the vehicles, evacuated by a Guard helicopter or being arrested for drunk driving. She said the participants followed through with the experience by being taken to Providence Alaska Medical Center for emergency care. The dead were taken to the morgue and the drunk driver was processed through the police department.

"There's people at the hospital. The medical staff are working on them as if they had those real injuries," said Shackelford following the evacuation of the crash scene.

Chugiak High senior Samantha Dubin, who portrayed the drunk driver who was "arrested" following the accident, experienced a whole different reality.

"She's being charged with multiple counts of assault and two counts of manslaughter and she's going through that whole process of an in-custody arraignment and sentencing," Shackelford said.

The presence of emergency responders, injured classmates and the weeping of parents brought in to identify their deceased children left onlookers with a decision to make as far as driving drunk.

Senior Brandon Washington, 18, said he felt the crash scene was, "tragic, awful and messed up," and that it would impact his decision to drive drunk, but he was unsure of how.

"I think that's a very honest opinion from them because they really don't know," Shackelford said. "It's making them think and that means success to me."

She said helping just one student make the decision to not drive drunk or get into a car with an intoxicated driver would satisfy event organizers.

"I think it fits the overall message that we want our kids to outlive us," Shackelford said. "I think it has to do with safety and longevity and having our kids make healthy choices."
Making sensible decisions was further reinforced throughout the rest of the day by having the Grim Reaper pull volunteer students out of class as additional crash victims that occur nationally "every 15 minutes."

Although alcohol related traffic collisions now occur closer to every 20 to 22 minutes nationally, Kathy Vik, the family and consumer sciences teacher at Chugiak High, said school organizers wanted to stay true to the program's original format, which included creating a total of 27 "walking dead" from the students removed from class and the mock accident victims who attended a retreat Tuesday night through Wednesday morning to contemplate their "deaths" and work on team building activities.

The student body remembered the dead Wednesday at a memorial service featuring readings of their obituaries written by their parents, Shackelford said.

She said she hopes the combined events and the reality of the program will give the students the tools they need to make sound individual decisions concerning whether or not to drive drunk or to get into a car with an intoxicated driver.

"The test is measured when that time comes, because it will come in real life," Shackelford said.

"Every 15 Minutes Awareness Program"
Chugiak High School, Alaska

A mock crash scenario to show the reality of driving while intoxicated and its potential consequences, was held for Chugiak High School students. An estimated 100 officials and volunteers worked behind the scenes for almost two years preparing for the drill. This program was the first in Alaska. The following chaplains participated:
Chaplain Barb Fortin, ME; Chaplain Victor Marbury, AFD;
Chaplain Denys Stumpf, ARH;
Chaplain Debra Waltman, AST;
Chaplain Boyd Waltman, AST.

The day began easily enough. Driving past Chugiak High School, a passerby’s eyes are drawn to the flashing red and blue lights, the shouting and the crowd. This was not another pep rally for the Friday night football game—it was a crime scene. Two cars collided in the parking lot. There was a body lying on the hood of one of the cars. It looked as if the driver had flown through the windshield. There was a young girl running around screaming at the top of her lungs for help, and then there were the hundreds of students standing around watching and doing nothing.

That is exactly what the organizers of the Every Fifteen Minutes Program planned. Planners explain that every fifteen minutes a person dies of an alcohol related collision. The mock crime scene was just the start of the emotionally charged program with students acting out the tragic parts. The crime scene instills teenagers with the dangerous consequences of drinking alcohol in a real life situation. This powerful program challenges students to think about drinking, personal safety and the responsibility of making mature decisions in their lives.

Back at the crime scene, ambulance crews finished loading the bloody beaten bodies into the vehicle. The ambulance speeds over to the football field where pararescuemen from the Alaska Air National Guard’s 212th Rescue Squadron repel out of a HH-60 Pave Hawk helicopter. After landing on the ground, they quickly load up the students to take them to the hospital. Moments later, students who were observing the entire production are headed back to class. The hallways are full of students— but they’re quiet, contemplating what they’ve just “experienced.” The message is starting to sink in.
Danger is still in the air. Just as students return to their rooms, and things seem to be settling down, there is a knock at the door. The grim reaper walks into classrooms all over the school and every fifteen minutes he takes one of the students away. This represents the percentage of teenagers around the nation who will die from an alcohol-related incident that day. How sobering the moment as the next morning the entire student body attends a funeral service for 27 of their classmates who died. The gym is dark, with only a few lights on, and many students and parents are weeping. Their feelings are sincere. The Army National Guard Mobile Events Team provided an Honor Guard for the “funeral.” Sergeant Jeff Bogle, MET leader said, “This event is aimed at the kids, but I think we have all been affected somehow. We came to support this program, but I think we will all walk away with a life-long lesson.”

Through efforts of police officers, educators and community volunteers, Every Fifteen Minutes reaches more than 20,000 students this year across the America.

15 Minutes DUI simulation gets students' attention

By AMY M. ARMSTRONG
For The Alaska Star

Organizers of the Every 15 Minutes drunk driving simulation at Chugiak High School last week got their desired reaction from students: shock, grief and even laughter.

"Yes, some of the onlookers were laughing," said Wendi Shackelford, an Anchorage Police Department school resource officer assigned to Chugiak. "But that doesn't bother me. It's a pretty normal reaction for a teenager to have when faced with a situation that makes them uncomfortable."

Shackelford along with Kathy Vik, the school's family and consumer science teacher, spearheaded the job of bringing the two-day, national program to Chugiak April 18 and 19.

Every 15 Minutes is an awareness program aimed at giving students a realistic look at the consequences of driving while under the influence of alcohol or other drugs. About 100 volunteers, including several from law enforcement agencies, prepared almost two years for the event, a first in Alaska.
The simulation included a mock crash aftermath that had the dead and injured wearing make-up to make it all look real. The drunk driver was arrested at the scene and arraigned in court, where emotional victim impact statements were read to the judge. There was a memorial service at the school.

A volunteer dressed as the Grim Reaper plucked a student from a classroom every 15 minutes as a reminder of the frequency of nationwide drunk driving fatalities. Those "walking dead" students later returned to class wearing white makeup and were not permitted to speak or interact with other students.

"I think if we have planted that seed that might cause even just one to stop and think about not drinking and driving, about not getting in a car with someone who has been drinking and driving, then we have done our job," Shackelford said. "It might take time for all of this to sink in, but it will."

That's what senior Madison Alger, a member of the "walking dead," hoped.

"When I saw some people laughing, part of me wanted to say, 'Hey, this is serious.' But maybe they were covering up how much it was really impacting them by laughing and, in reality, it may change them more than we can see right away," Alger said.

Alger became involved in the project to honor a friend who died due to a drunk driving collision during her freshman year when she attended boarding school in Minnesota.
"I've been thinking a lot of that person today," she said April 18.

Alger said being "dead" was difficult.

"It made me cry. I feel very lonely," she said.

Just think how the Grim Reaper felt.

The only verbal interaction he had with students was his ominous entrance into various classrooms announcing yet another death.

"Because you chose to drink and drive, you must now come with me," he repeated numerous times as he held his scythe out toward the pre-selected student.

If a particular classroom had a second fatality, the Reaper announced, "Because you chose to ride in a car with someone who was drinking and driving, come with me."

Reactions in classrooms varied from giggling to near terror, but the Reaper continued his rounds unfazed.

"Some of the laughter bothers me a bit because I want these students to know this is a serious issue," said Todd Hemmert, who played the role of the Grim Reaper. His daughter, Brittney, is a junior and became involved in Every 15 Minutes planning last fall. "But again, if we reach just one student, it was worth it."

While Hemmert said he knows his daughter isn't perfect, he is also assured she won't drink and drive and he wanted to help spread that concept across the student body - particularly as the prom season is here.

"That is a very dangerous time for these students," he said. "They need to be aware that there is danger at all the parties that go on afterward."

While some may choose to turn a blind eye to the amount of underage drinking going on among the student population, Meghan McDonald, a senior who was also a member of the "walking dead," said the school's nickname of - CHUG-iaq - ought to be a clue.
"Drinking is a big problem here," she said. "It is a big social influence."

That's something that freshman Lindsay Dyal and sophomore Rachel Byrnes agree with.

As the pair hung white memorial flowers on the school fence, they admitted that they know students who leave campus during lunch to drink or pour booze in their morning coffee or energy drink.

"I hope this event is an eye opener for people to realize what is really happening around them," Dyal said.

"And that it changes them," Byrnes added.

Emotions were real in drunk driving tragedy simulation

By DAN SHEPARD for the Alaska Star

It's been said, "A picture is worth a thousand words." It would take more than a thousand words to describe the experience I had April 18 and 19 at Chugiak High School photographing the Every Fifteen Minutes program.

I've had several challenging assignments over the years at The Star, but none of them compared to this one. The images the students and staff saw were as compelling as they were realistic. For the students directly involved in this event, the realism reached deep, as did the emotions.

I photographed the Grim Reaper taking students out of the classroom one by one. Immediately after, an Anchorage police officer along with a police chaplain came into the classroom to read each student's obituary to the class. The room went silent. The stunned look of, "What just happened?" and the sideways glances started what was to be a full dose of reality. Even when I knew it was coming, I too felt a sense of sadness. "How must they be feeling right about now?" I thought. I kept shooting, trying to capture what words are hard to describe. There was more to come, lots more.

Principal Rick Volk told the students over the school's public address system that there had been a terrible vehicle collision in the school's parking lot. The entire student body and staff filed outside to the crash site. A "real life" drama unfolded before our eyes. The Anchorage Police and Chugiak Volunteer Fire departments responded as if it were real.

As I looked through the viewfinder of my camera, my heart began to ache. I've taken hundreds of pictures of Chugiak and its students. I've photographed Matt Devlin many times pulling down a touchdown pass, but never with a screwdriver embedded in his back and being carried on a stretcher to a waiting ambulance. Samantha Dubin has been featured in The Star sinking a bucket or getting high fives from teammates, but never being sentenced by a Superior Court Judge to 15 years in prison for killing two people and injuring several others in a fatal car crash while driving under the influence.
I had to concentrate hard to keep shooting and stay focused and not let my emotions get away. I had to keep reminding myself, "This is not real. It's a drama." But what if it were real?

Aside from the real-life accuracy it portrayed, which pulled me into the entire event, I was drawn by the courage of these young people and the parents involved. Like Gordon Hanes, father of Brooke Hanes, who "died" in the crash. As he addressed Superior Court Judge Morgan Christan to give a victim impact statement, my camera was at my side. It was if I couldn't photograph him. As he spoke, I could feel the tears welling up in my eyes, as did many others in the room.

Why was I getting so emotional? Maybe it's because this could happen to my family or me. Gordon's words had meaning and feeling as if this really did happen. Why would he put himself through this, I thought? I only shot two photos of him while he spoke. It was as if I was paralyzed.

Or how about Linda Flegle, who was called to the scene to identify her daughter, Christine. Would I have that kind of courage?

There was plenty of courage to go around. The parents and students arrived April 19 dressed in black to attend the memorial service in the school gym, complete with casket and color guard. How much courage did it take for Eric Pinard-Janich to read a letter to his parents, in front of the entire school, which started, "Dear Mom and Dad, I died today and didn't have a chance to tell you...." Or how about the real life story told to us by Charlotte and Chrysti, both sides of a real drunken driving tragedy? It was as if I had been socked in the gut after listening to these speakers.

At the end, I was grateful. Grateful this was all pretend. Grateful I could go home to see my family. Grateful that all the "victims" could go home to their families. Grateful for all the volunteers who helped bring this program to Chugiak High School to educate our kids about the real tragedy that happens in a drunk driving crash. Extremely grateful to Kathy Vik, Leah Uehling and police officer Wendi Shackelford who had the vision and determination to lead a team of volunteers over two years to make this presentation a reality.

Every 15 Minutes was a success in every sense of the word. Yet, the true measure of success is not how many eyes were filled with tears or how well the students played their role. But rather it will come in the middle of the night when one of Chugiak's students thinks back to this and makes the decision to not drink and drive or get into a vehicle with someone who has. Then, all this will have been well worth it.

Every 15 Minutes good news for all of us
By Tony Bickert, Editor for the Alaska Star

People who choose to drive under the influence of alcohol or other drugs not only risk hurting themselves and the people who choose to ride with them, but they put us all at risk for we never know when an impaired driver will cross our path.

That's why last week's successful Every 15 Minutes drunk driving simulation at Chugiak High School is not only good news for the students, but for everybody.

Named after the frequency of U.S. DUI-related fatalities, Every 15 minutes was a play, but not your usual, charming school drama. This was a major production nearly two years in the making, a two-day tragedy produced and acted out by a huge cast of students, parents, law enforcement officials and other volunteers. Chugiak High teens were the audience. The goal was to simply get their attention.

It did. Though the blood was fake, the gallons of tears shed by the students - as well as by the parents and even some law enforcement officials - were real.

That's success. The students will not easily forget what they experienced last week, and chances are some will recall that emotional experience when it comes time to make the decision whether or not to drive under the influence of alcohol or other drugs. And at least a few will choose not to.

Thank you, cast and production crew of Every 15 Minutes, for making the roads safer for all of us.
Kudos to 15 Minutes crew

Kudos to Wendi Shackelford, Kathy Vik and the whole team of kids and community members who made "Every 15 Minutes" happen at Chugiak High School.

When my daughter, Kara, first mentioned her involvement with this project, I had no idea how much would be asked of me. As the parent of a "walking dead," I experienced a uniformed police officer arriving at my place of work to inform me of my child's death. I wrote an obituary. I attended a memorial service. I shed many tears throughout this whole process, and it is even difficult for me to write this letter.

Although the facts of this two-day event were represented by the media, I'm not sure that the real impact it had on our kids has come through. There has been some mention of the kids who laughed or tried to make light of the whole thing, but I was present at the end of the "memorial assembly," when the entire school sunk into a stunned silence. This was an extremely powerful and intense experience for many. It made lots of kids think. It made me think. Students, parents, and community members alike, we all committed to this very demanding task because we believe in being part of the solution. May no parent ever have to go through what I went through, except magnified a thousand times, because it is "for real."

Dear Mom, I'm sorry

Editor's note: The following letter was written for the Every 15 Minutes drunk driving awareness simulation held at Chugiak High School April 18 and 19. Part of the event had students playing the part of drunk driving victims and offenders. Some wrote their own obituaries and, in this case, a letter from prison.

Dear Mom, Every 15 minutes someone dies in the United States from an alcohol related car collision. Today I took the lives of two beautiful girls. Because of my actions, I will spend the next 15 years in prison.

Mom, I don't know what to say. These events have changed our lives completely. I will no longer graduate on May 30. I won't go to college and become what I wanted. I can no longer see you and hug you when I am feeling sad. This is all my fault. You could not have raised me any better. Due to my own choices and actions, everything you have ever taught me has been wasted. I hope you understand how much I love you and how sorry I am that things ended up this way. Someday I hope I can make things right again...

To Brooke, Christine, and their parents: I cannot express the sorrow I feel for all of you right now. Your pain is unimaginable and the suffering will never end. Your daughters were amazing girls with bright futures. To have everything in this world snatched away from you in one instant is horrifying. All I can do now is beg for your forgiveness, because there is nothing else. I cannot backtrack and undo my decision. So, please believe me when I say that I am so sorry. I cared deeply about both of these girls and I truly hope one day you will accept my apology.

To all Chugiak High School students: What I have been through in the past 24 hours has been a series of events that are so horrific that I hope no one ever has to go through them. Not only was I sentenced to 15 years in prison, but I tore the families of two girls apart. I had to sit in a courtroom where my image was broadcast across Alaska for all to see my guilt. I had to listen to Gordon Hanes and Linda Flegle mourn over the loss of their daughters. I had to watch my own mother's heart break when I walked into that courtroom. This was the hardest thing that I have ever had to do, whether simulation or reality.

I wish that everyone could have experienced this prison with me because now I know, for the rest of my life, that I will never put my life or anyone else's life in jeopardy by driving after drinking.

Teens Get Hit with a "Reality Check" on Driving Drunk

Every 15 minutes someone in the United States is killed in an alcohol-related accident. In 2004 alone, 31 Alaskans died in drunk driving accidents. The grim statistic is something most teenagers don’t ever think about, but this week, at one high school, the statistic became all too real.

Tears flowed Wednesday as students at Chugiak High School remembered their friends who were killed in a drunk driving accident. Together with their parents, and teachers, they grieved for their lost loved ones. But while the tears were real, the deaths were not.

The memorial was part of a program, designed to shock teenagers, to keep them from drinking and driving.

It all started 24 hours earlier, just as class was getting under way, Tuesday morning. A gruesome and chaotic accident was staged in the school’s parking lot. The entire student body watched as their friends acted out the motions, and emotions, of a real crash. Bloody bodies sat motionless, hanging through windshields, and falling out of cars. The terrified drunk driver screamed as she tried to wake her lifeless friend.

Within minutes, rescuers arrived from the Anchorage Police Department, and Chugiak Fire Department. They quickly sprang into action, treating the wounded, and covering the bodies with white sheets.

Police administered a field sobriety test, as the drunk driver continued to yell for her passenger to wake up. She was cuffed, put into the back of a police cruiser, and taken to jail.

Onlookers tried desperately to separate reality from fiction.
"I thought it’d be easier, but it’s not. It’s kind of a reality check," said sophomore, Heather Lipscomb, as she huddled close to her friends.

Students began crying as one of the white sheets was lifted, so a distraught mother could identify her dead daughter. Linda Flegle was supposed to act as if she was devastated, but at that moment, it was no longer acting.

The second she arrived, "It was like, it was like it was real. It was like my daughter was somewhere out there in this horrible accident and I had no clue what happened to her."

As 17 year old Brooke Hanes, a victim of the crash, laid on the cold concrete, separated from the chaos by her white sheet, she felt isolated and longed to tell her friends and father she was okay.

"I have a sheet over me and I have all these emotions going on but no one knows ‘cause I’m dead," she said.

18-year-old Madison Alger, who helped plan the event, was overcome with emotion as she watched paramedics treat her friends.

"It was absolutely just terrifying to see something like that. It killed me, because I was an onlooker and to know that yes it was a reenactment but yet I couldn’t go out there and help them because they were dead or they were injured and how I couldn’t take that pain away from them."

To keep the scene as real as possible, the two dead students were picked up by the medical examiner. At the same time, a critically wounded girl was airlifted out by the National Guard.

Back in Anchorage, 18-year-old Samantha Dubin, now in an orange prison jumpsuit, was arraigned on charges of manslaughter, and DUI.

She left court, and came back a few minutes later, now in a suit. At Dubin’s sentencing the parents of the two dead students told the court how their lives had changed because of the accident. It was an emotional scene that became too hard for everyone to bear. Brooke Hanes’ father cried as he told the court his daughter lived her life with "intention." Dubin also cried, and this time, she wasn’t acting. At that moment, the reality of what an offender goes through became too much for the promising young woman to handle.

The experience, she says, has changed her life.
"I could never imagine having to do this ever, I mean, whether I'm 18 or whether I'm 45 it's, this is awful."

For Dubin and the others, the pain they felt only lasted on day. But it’s the memory of that day that organizer hope will follow the students for the rest of their lives, so they don't ever become just another drunk driving statistic.

 The events at Chugiak High School were organized by Officer Wendy Shackelford of the Anchorage Police Department.

Exercise teaches teens realities of drunken driving
Tuesday, April 18, 2006 - by Rebecca Palsha

Anchorage, Alaska - An Anchorage teen gets behind the wheel after having too much to drink. She smashes into another car and two people are killed. It’s a horror story that was played out in front of hundreds of Chugiak High School students today, but at least this time, everyone walked away safely because this time it was all staged in an effort to keep kids away from drunken driving. It was all part of the Every 15 Minutes campaign.

Two cars smash into each other and Brooke Hanes lays motionless. Christine Flegle is almost unrecognizable. It could have been avoided if 18-year-old Samantha Dubin hadn’t driven drunk. Luckily, today’s accident was staged, to show Chugiak High School students the dangers of drunken driving.

The scene is realistic and gruesome.

“It’s kind of scary. I’ve had friends in accidents before and they’ve been really lucky,” said Ellen Hackenmueller Hackenmueller had a front row seat when emergency responders covered the body of her best friend.

The scene becomes even more difficult to watch. One almost has to turn away as Linda Flegle identifies her daughter’s body and her pain feels very real. Gordan Hanes is also overcome after he tells police the second victim is his youngest daughter.

“Her place was as my baby girl and that’s how she cared to be remembered to me,” said Hanes.

As hundreds of students continue to watch, Dubin is arrested for their deaths and hauled off to jail. Half an hour later, charged with drunken driving and manslaughter, she sits behind bars and waits to learn her fate.

“This isn’t just a traffic offense, these are two homicides,” said the judge.
The day continues with Dubin’s trial. Her mother might be the best person to tell you how that feels.

“This would be a parent’s worst nightmare to be here on this side of the table or on that side of the table,” said Claire Dubin.

Dubin also has to face her victims’ families.

“She lived her life with intention and purpose. My deep desire would be that this life gets lived with intention and purpose because she now carries the weight of two extra persons,” said Hanes (left).

“All because of some bad decisions, bad choices, many lives were shattered, my family, my friends,” said Linda Flegle (right).

The bad choice: driving drunk.

“I am so sorry, and I will never, never, ever again ever put myself or anyone else in danger over something like that,” said Samantha Dubin, the ‘drunken driver.’ (below)

It’s a story today that everyone hopes won’t become a reality tomorrow. Some students were very upset by the scenario, but those are the types of emotions organizers want the audience to feel, so they know what it is like.

Mock scenario drives home real-life decisions

By JILL FANKHAUSER

Alaska Star

At 9:10 a.m. April 21 a police dispatcher came over the loudspeaker in Chugiak High School and described a fatal crash between a truck and a car in the school’s parking lot.

It was all a drill - a powerful reminder to teenagers that every 15 minutes, someone dies in an alcohol-related car accident.

Police, fire and medics arrived on scene immediately and tried to control the chaos - screaming victims, an intoxicated driver and a horrible head-on collision.

“I’m sorry!” the driver yelled through her tears. “I’m so sorry.”

The driver, a teenage girl named Molly Devlin, had smashed into a white sedan with four classmates - all had injuries from the crash. One friend, also a teenage girl named Amanda, was killed when she crashed through the sedan’s windshield.

Devlin got out of a small pickup truck, bloody and hysterical, as a police officer asked her how much she had to drink.

“We were going to a basketball game and decided to drink before,” Devlin said.

She looked over her shoulder at rescuers from the Chugiak Volunteer Fire Department as they covered up the body on the car’s hood and assessed the passengers’ injuries. Devlin hyperventilated and sobbed.

Devlin tried to focus as the officer lead her through a field sobriety test. She was unable to balance on one foot or walk a straight line. She was put into... handcuffs and escorted to a police car headed for jail. She would walk through the legal process of breath analysis tests, sitting in a jail cell, court arraignment, trial and judgment. Devlin would be booked for drunken driving and two felony deaths and charged for the injuries of four passengers.

The driver of the other car, a girl named Victoria Lomen, gasped for air. She was loaded in an ambulance and taken to Providence Medical Center for treatment, where she later died. A broken rib punctured her lung.

As police officers, medics, media and fire crews surrounded the scene April 21 in the Chugiak High School parking lot - the entire student body looked on.

Empty beer cans littered the pavement. The chaos at the scene continued. Everyone in the white sedan cried and bled. Rescuers used Jaws of Life to pry off the car doors and pull the teenagers out onto stretchers.

All the while, from the time of the crash until the medical examiner collected Amanda Landon’s body, the Grim Reaper stood by as a reminder that someone had died.

Caleb Pruitt, a junior member of Chugiak Volunteer Fire Department, was one of the first responders to the accident. He has been training with the department for a few months and has some emergency medicine training. “We started extracting people from the vehicles. That’s when it kind of hit me,” Pruitt said. “One of the passengers started yelling. It was a really eerie feeling, and the driver of the truck got out and was sobbing. I got mad - kind of gritted my teeth. It bugged me - it was like they were feeling sorry for themselves almost.”

Pruitt said it was one of the best trainings he’s ever done - even though it was a fake scenario, he was able to treat it as if were real. After the incident, he felt exhausted as his adrenaline settled.
Someone dies every 15 minutes

The last time the Grim Reaper, Tod Hemmert, with the National Guard, came to Chugiak was in 2006, as part of the school’s first Every 15 Minute drunken driving education effort. At the time he was a parent of a Chugiak student and wanted to demonstrate responsible behavior for his daughter and her classmates. His daughter has graduated, but he was so moved the last time the school hosted the event, he jumped at the chance to do it again.

“This is such a touching program for the parents and the kids. I’ll keep doing this as long as they ask me to come back,” he said.

He donned a black cape and skeletal mask and gloves and seemed to float around the crash scene. He is a 6 foot, 6 inch man, and his height adds to the magnitude of the Grim Reaper - a symbol to students that people had died in the collision.

The reaper’s job throughout the day was to pull kids from class - one every 15 minutes. Police officers and chaplains followed the reaper to read the students’ obituaries to classmates.

The walking dead painted their faces white and wore black T-shirts as a reminder to others they were dead. They didn’t speak in class or to their friends in the hallway or at lunch.
“Reactions are very somber - nervous laughter or a scream,” Hemmert said “We get the reaction we want, the sobriety of what’s happening. If this just sticks in one person’s head and stops them, it’s worth it.”

The walking dead

Fifteen students were pulled from their classes one by one throughout the day to be a walking reminder of the finality of death.

Tyler Greensfelder, a junior, volunteered to become one of the walking dead. He heard about the program when he was at Mirror Lake Middle School in 2006. The reaper showed up at his classroom door and said that since Greensfelder chose to get in a car with a drunken driver, he was dead.

“I just wanted to see the impact that I would have on people, he said. “People see me coming down the hall and they stop talking. It’s harder than I thought it would be.”

Anchorage police officer John Bennett delivered death notices to classrooms and read obituaries. He has done these for real - telling families about the death of a loved one - and said it’s one of the worst of his duties as a police officer. “It’s very painful because you are bringing the worse news possible,” Bennett said. He experienced some of the pain and compassion during the school event. “You almost get caught up in it a little bit. You can see it in the kids faces that it hits them, probably unexpectedly - even though this is a simulation, it still has an effect on them.”

Police officers and chaplains tracked down parents at their jobs to break the bad news that their son or daughter died in an alcohol-related accident. The parents were warned this would happen, but police chaplains said the parents still took the news hard.
That night parents didn’t see their children at home, as the students were off at a retreat to contemplate the day and the possible impact of their own death.

The victim’s view

During the crash, fatality victim, senior Amanda Landon, laid across the hood of a car with her head through the windshield. Her eyes were closed and she was covered with a white sheet. She said it was surreal to hear the rescue going on around her.

Landon’s mother Kay Landon arrived on scene accompanied by a police chaplain and Bennett to say goodbye to her daughter. Kay Landon wailed was unable to stand on her own when she saw her daughter. “I felt really sad - and disappointed, like I really did get into this position where I did drink and get into this accident - it felt hurtful,” Amanda Landon said. “Like I made that choice where she would be in that state. I heard my mom and she hugging me. I started crying, but she couldn’t see it.”

Amanda Landon was zipped up in a body bag and taken to the state medical examiner’s office in Anchorage. She was taken into a room where dead bodies were stored, and where one was out in the open. “This will definitely be something to remember,” she said. “There’s so many people who make this decision every weekend - people you know who drive drunk and you want to say like ‘Hey, this is a really stupid choice.’”

Reach kids before tragedy strikes

School resources police officer Wendi Shackelford hopes that students realize the impact of the decisions they make when they go out. “Our goal is to change one - too keep a kid from drunk driving or getting in as passenger,” she said. She believes the program effectively reaches students. “It’s a way to reach the kids before a tragedy and this is as close as we can get it to the tragedy with that emotional impact,” she said. “I believe it does hit across the board. They may be 40 before they have to use this skill - but we’ve lodged it in there because we’ve tied emotion with learning.”
Shackelford and teachers Kathleen Vik and Leha Uehling have been planning this event since September 2008. They got grants from the Anchorage Police Department and State Farm Insurance to help pay for promotional items like T-shirts for students and volunteers. And they got help from local businesses to supply lunch, snacks and drinks for the 94 volunteers that helped out.

After school the walking dead and victims headed to an overnight retreat to reflect and prepare for a memorial service the next day. The memorial service, complete with two caskets for the victims, was held in the school’s gym Friday. Students read letters to their parents about how their lives were cut short and listened to a real victim of drunken driving.

“You could hear a pin drop at the end of it,” Shackelford said.

Moulage Team Leader Brian Webb gets the scene ready
Extrication of the First Victim

Every 15 Minutes
By Ronni Sullivan
Board of Supervisors, Chugiak Fire Service Area

THE FIRST DAY
It was a beautiful spring day and the entire student body of Chugiak High School was out in the parking lot. They were staring at two vehicles, a small pickup and a sedan, in a head-on crash scene. One body was lying lifeless across the hood of the car, her head and torso through the windshield. Screams and moans came from the other four injured and the drunk driver. A tall, black robed Grim Reaper moved through the scene as sirens wailed and police, fire and EMS began to arrive.

Bad judgment, blood and beer cans all set a stage too familiar to EMS responders. But this wasn’t about us. It was about the 1300 students seeing it all unfold in real time, and realizing they knew the kids in the cars and this could happen to them.
The victims were extricated, immobilized and transported to the hospital, where another girl died in the ER. Her parents were called to her side as the potential reality swept them into the tragedy. The drunk driver was arrested, finger printed, jailed. She later went to court and was convicted….another young life inextricably changed by what happened.

The student body returned to class, thinking it was over. But for the rest of the day, every 15 minutes the Grim Reaper showed up in a classroom and took another student away to signify the life lost every 15 minutes to drunk driving in this country.

THE SECOND DAY
It was a huge memorial service. There were pictures of each of the victims, with candles burning and funeral wreaths nearby. The lively and noisy student body filed in and took their seats in the bleachers but quieted quickly as the setting before them began to sink in. Grieving families, some already crying watched the pall bearers carry the coffin to the front. You could have heard a pin drop in the room as the entire 1300 students focused on what was happening, and why.

Two of the victims took the stage and read letters they had written to their parents the night before, which began...“Dear Mom and Dad, every fifteen minutes someone in the United States dies from an alcohol related traffic collision, and today I died. I never had a chance to tell you ...They spoke of love and words unsaid and of missed opportunities. Parents read similar letters they had written to their children. They spoke of deep sorrow and dreams lost and a lifetime of pain ahead. We were all transported by the reality. When the kids returned to the arms of their parents there were few dry eyes in the house.

When the student body went back to class after the service they were quiet still, with a little nervous laughter, but obviously touched by what they had seen. They had just experienced some of what could happen and how the decision to drink can affect many more than the one who takes that drink.

Will the lesson last? We all hope so. But if even one of these kids makes a better decision because of this program then it was worth all the long hours and hard work that went into putting it together. The parents, the kids and the rest of us in Chugiak were again well served by this tremendous community project.

It was the work of so many, spearheaded by Officer Wendi Shackelford, coordinated primarily by Chugiak High School and Anchorage Police Department, with Chugiak Volunteer Fire and Rescue (and 23 of their responders). It wouldn’t have been possible without the many committed individuals and agencies that worked to make this a success, including the hospital, district attorney, chaplains, the great moulage team and many, many others. Good work, all of you, and thank you.
Students get face-to-face with drunken driving consequences

by Maria Downey
Tuesday, April 21, 2009

CHUGIAK, Alaska -- The simulated drunken driving crash Tuesday at Chugiak High School was about as real as a simulation can get.

It was a life-saving message sent in a very graphic way. One person was dead, and five were critically injured. It all started with a suspected drunken driver who was tested at the scene.

During the awareness program, the grim reaper was also on site. During the day, he visited classrooms where he removed a student every 15 minutes.

A police officer then read the student's obituary written by their parents. "The feedback that we've gotten is that it's had a real emotional impact on the students that are not only involved role playing but as well as the students that are watching it as well. It's a tremendous program to get this message out to don't drink and drive," said Officer John Bennett.

The simulation takes place about every other year at different schools throughout the district.

When does it hit home?

By admin on September 24, 2009 12:00 PM

This spring a group of students from the Journalism and Public Communications Department at the university produced a video for the Anchorage Police Department and the Anchorage School District. The video was a mock DUI vehicle accident involving Chugiak High School students that played out before the rest of the student body in the parking lot of the school.

Ambulances, fire fighters, police, parents and news media were witness to a series of events from the beginning to bodies being taken either to the hospital, the morgue, booking procedure and trial, but it did not stop there ~ the next morning there was an all school assembly, testimonials from parents and "funeral".

The university students followed all the action from the call to the drama of the trial and sentencing. Six cameras and ten students followed the action and spent the next 24 hours producing a 5-minute video that was played during the assembly.

The entire effort took a tremendous amount of time and dedication on all fronts. TATI Broadcasting was airing "live" reports from the accident scene. Cameras captured the agony of parents whose children and been "injured or killed" in the accident. There are scenes from the accident, there are scenes from the morgue, there are scenes from Providence Hospital as emergency room personnel try to save those that were seriously injured in the accident.
There is the booking process, the locking of the jail doors, the events that transpired in the courtroom. Every step of the process was documented and highlighted in the video that played the next morning.

One could not help feeling the impact of the event ~ no one. Parents talked about their loss, friends of the "deceased" spoke of their loss and, hopefully, the casket rolling into the room was enough to bring the room to tears.

I was reminded of all this as I watched the 20-minute video that is now in the final stages of being produced. If it was not enough to go through the experience once, Katrina Grimwood, the UAA student producer, has brought it all back to the forefront in a power piece that should remind all of us of the cause and effect of driving under the influence ~ even a greater pull on the heart strings when it is centered on the problem of teenage drivers who lack fear.
It should be an important reminder to everyone that there is a problem with young drivers drinking and driving in Alaska. Forty-four percent of last year's traffic fatalities involved someone under the age of 25 including younger children killed by their parents who were drinking and driving.

!Alaska Fatalities 2004-2008

The evidence of the problem is captured in the charts accompanying this article. The majority of Alaska's fatalities occur between the Valley and Kenai which should be no surprise given the number of headlines and news stories noting the increase of accidents on the Seward Highway this summer.

!Regional Fatalities 2008

While the statistical fatality trend has varied over the last 40 years, I was alarmed at the statistics on how easy it is for the underage to actually buy alcohol. This is highlighted by the percentage of stores that "failed" the Alaska Department of Safety test by selling alcohol to individuals that had no business buying it. Nome and Ketchikan lead the state, but Anchorage and Wasilla are not far behind.
Behind all of this is Wendi Shackelford of the Anchorage Police Department. Literally, with a cast of hundreds she brought together a monumental task that went off according to plan. She had a lot of help and there were so many people that it would be impossible to name them all even if I could. Her efforts on behalf of our teens should be appreciated. Having watched her, she cares and is moved by the problem and sprang into action.

Pre Test Survey for Every 15 Minutes Participants
Revised: March 23, 2006

We are interested in your behaviors and attitudes about alcohol and road safety before your participation in the Every 15 Minutes Program. Your responses will remain anonymous; no one will know how you answered. For the purposes of this survey, ‘alcohol’ refers to beer, wine, wine coolers, or liquor (distilled spirits or “hard” liquor). ‘One drink’ means a regular sized can, bottle, or wine cooler; one mixed drink or one shot glass of liquor.
